DE VALERA CARRIES OUT BLUE SHIRT THREAT

BRITAIN'S EYE ON AUSTRIA

A NEW CONSULAR POST

OBSERVER AT INNSBRUCK

London, Aug. 22.
Considerable significance is attached to the appointment of Mr. I. L. Henderson as British Consul at Innsbruck.

The appointment constitutes the creation of a new British Consular post in the Austrian Tyrol, and the special importance in the step lies in the fact that Innsbruck is the centre of the Nazi movement in Austria, a regular hotbed of intrigue against the existing Austrian government.

Most of the Nazi outrages and acts of terrorism in Austria have occurred in the Innsbruck district, or are suspected to have been plotted there.

Mr. I. L. Henderson, who is at present on the Consular staff at Antwerp, is taking up his new duties in Austria immediately.

ANOTHER BROADCAST.

Little doubt exists that the appointment is a development of the Austro-German tension and the Nazi threats against Austria, in which connexion Reuter's Munich correspondent reports this evening that despite Signor Mussolini's renewed friendly representations to Berlin, another Nazi speech attacking the existing Austrian Government was broadcast from the Munich station to-night.—Reuter.

LE TEMPS' COMMENTS

Commenting on the Austro-German dispute, the Paris "Le Temps" says: "There can be no question of pouring more oil on the fire. Yet to-day, more than ever, Austrian independence seems to be essential for the maintenance of order in Europe. The Great Powers who are anxious to keep this order should support the Dollfus Cabinet in its courageous struggle."

"In his broadcast addresses, Herr Habicht pretends to be viewing with satisfaction the possibility of a recourse to the League of Nations, apparently claiming the credit of good sportsmanship."

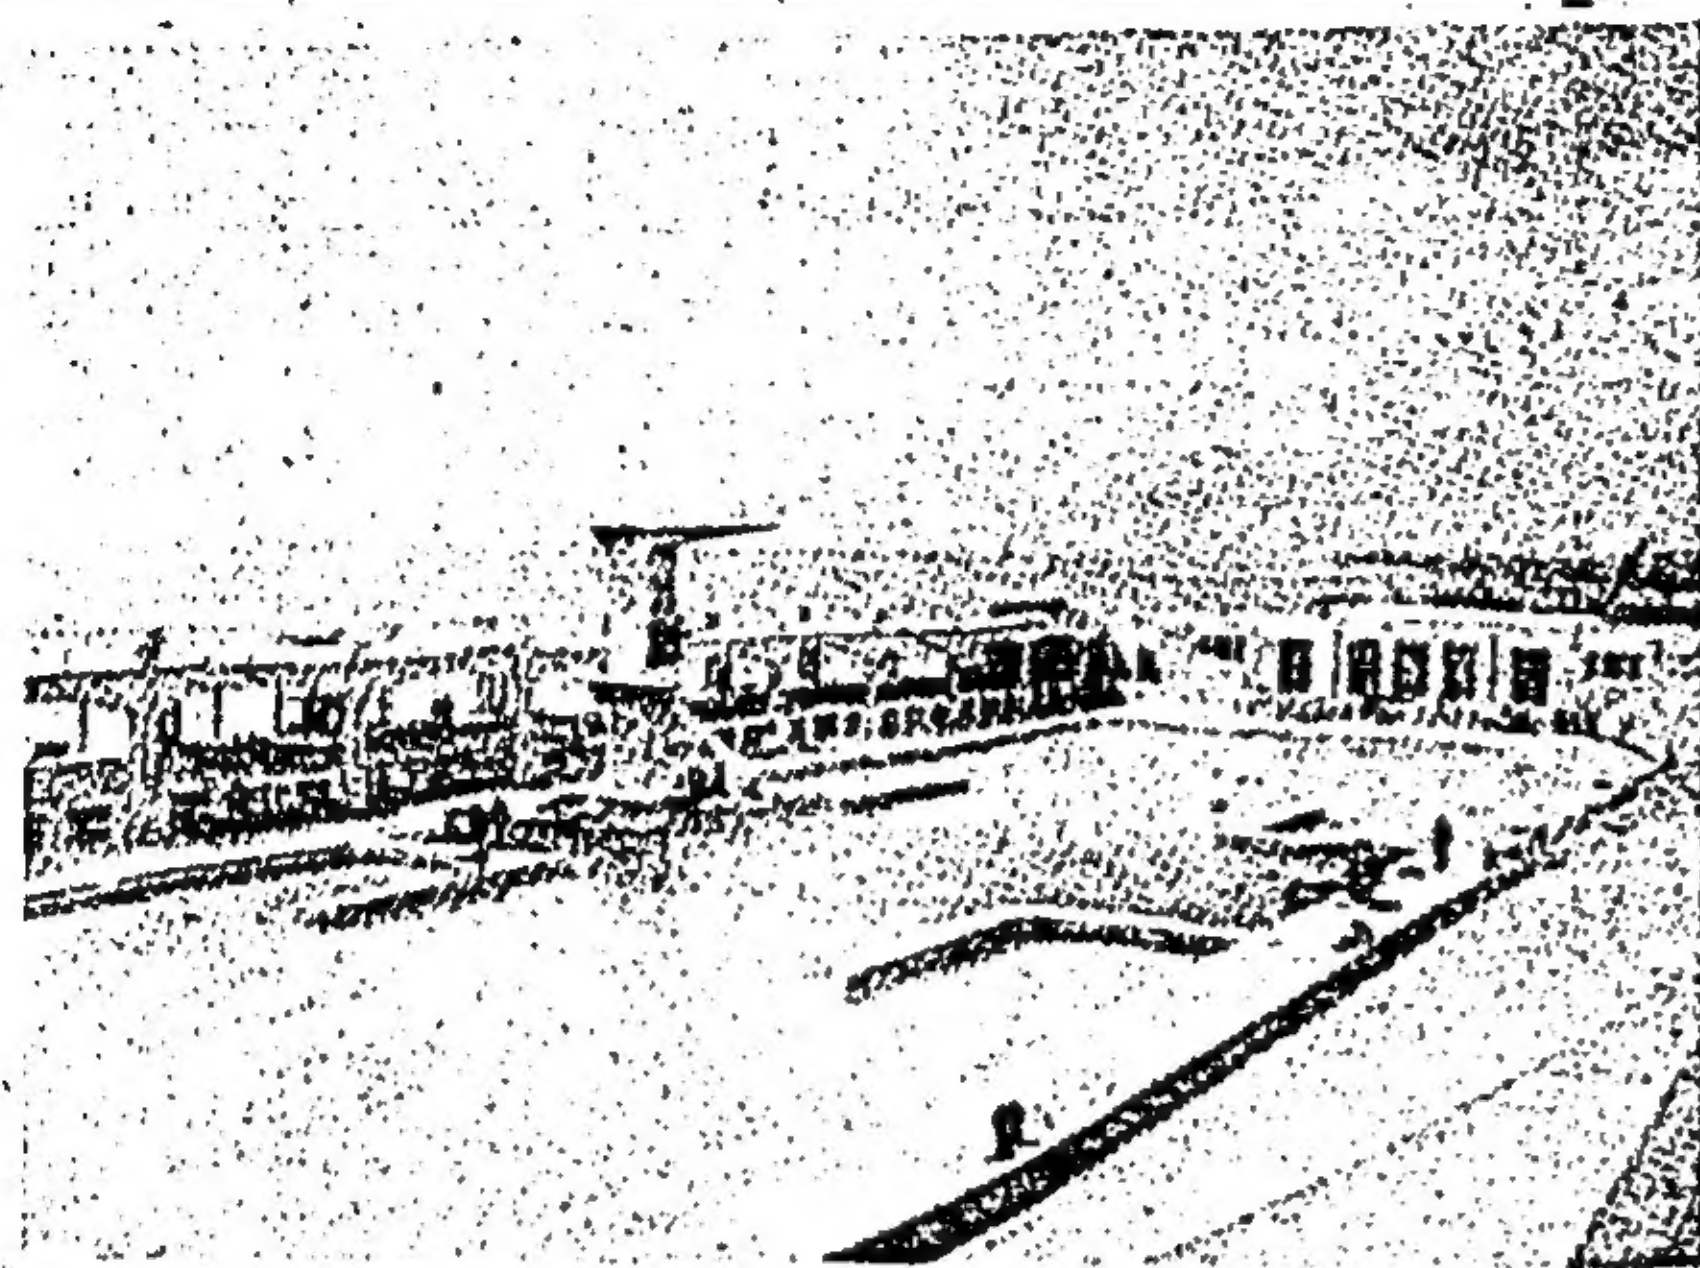

"Germany's present activity in Austria," the paper goes on, "is manifestly in contradiction with Article 80 of Versailles Treaty. Should the case be brought before the League of Nations, and if Europe still has a grain of sense as regards human laws, Germany's condemnation is a foregone conclusion."

"The larger part of international public opinion, now seems to be against Hitlerite Germany and ready to envisage sanctions. This," the paper concludes, "should make even such resolute violators of right, as Herr Hitler and his collaborators seem to be, think twice."

NEW AUSTRIAN DECREE

No less than 7,000 Austrian National Socialists are, according to the press, liable to be punished by the new decree which provides that anyone found guilty of supporting a foreign political organization calculated to impair the authority of the Austrian Government, will lose his Austrian citizenship and will have his property confiscated. The organ of the "Heimatschutz" openly avers that the decree was passed at the express demand of this organization, and also publishes a long list of leading Austrian National Socialists who are to come under the provisions of the new decree.

AIR SEARCH FOR SMUGGLERS

"DAWN PATROL" IN SINGAPORE

WATCH ON LINER

Singapore is now employing aeroplanes in a determined effort to combat the ever-present incidence of smuggling in Singapore waters.

The first "dawn patrol," a Moth aeroplane from the Flying Club, set out last week and as a result the Monopolies Department is now considering that this new method of smuggling patrol should be permanently adopted.

The machine flew to the Horeburgh light, and landed in a small cove, hidden from view, to await the approach of a certain liner expected from China ports.

WAITING CRAFT.

Taking to the air shortly after sunrise, it identified the liner at 7.55 a.m., steaming slowly towards the harbour. If there were smugglers aboard this would be an admirable place to "dump" their contraband. Small waiting craft were in the vicinity.

Suddenly the pilot gave the signal and the Moth swooped down to within ten feet of the water. As the observer Mr. Gordon satisfied himself that the native boats were not of the type usually used by smugglers' accomplices and away flew the plane again.

THE ARM OF THE LAW.

Had his suspicions been aroused the signal to waiting launches could have been given and the arm of the law would have reached out.

If it is decided to adopt this system of aerial control it is expected that the Singapore Flying Club's Cutty Sark will be used, for, as was the case this morning, the sea is sometimes very rough. It would then be possible for this machine to make a safe landing, anchor and enable a patrol to catch a gang red-handed.

REICHSTAG FIRE

ENQUIRY EVIDENCE DEVELOPMENT

TREATMENT OF ACCUSED

London, Aug. 22.

Arising out of the burning of the Reichstag immediately prior to the holding of the last elections in Germany, an interesting situation has arisen.

At the moment an International Legal Commission is conducting an investigation into this burning of the building and it is understood that they have gathered important evidence.

The German Government a few days ago requested the Commission to forward copies of certain papers held by the Commission, and the members agreed to do so upon certain conditions.

CONDITIONS REFUSED.

The conditions included more humane treatment for the accused, a free choice of counsel by the accused and the right of defending counsel to call witnesses and to examine all documents relating to the trial.

The German Government has, it is learned to-day, refused to accept the conditions laid down by the Commission.

The Nazis, it will be recalled, arrested a number of alleged Communists and imprisoned them on allegations of connexion with the burning of the Reichstag.—Reuter.

ORGANISATION PROCLAIMED

MILITARY TRIBUNAL ESTABLISHED

GENERAL O'DUFFY DEFIANT

LONDON, AUG. 22.

THE TENSE POLITICAL SITUATION IN THE IRISH FREE STATE IS RAPIDLY APPROACHING A CRISIS. REUTER'S DUBLIN CORRESPONDENT REPORTS THAT MR. DE VALERA HAS CARRIED OUT HIS THREAT AND HAS PROCLAIMED THE BLUE SHIRTS.

A Government proclamation has been issued declaring General O'Duffy's National Guard to be an illegal organisation and announcing the creation of a Military Tribunal.

The Military Tribunal will have the power of summary trial of political offenders and may impose penalties ranging from a fine to sentence of death. Anyone wearing the uniform of the Blue Shirt organisation will be liable to immediate arrest and trial by Military Tribunal.

READY TO FACE CONSEQUENCES

The action of the Government followed a meeting of the Executive Council (the Cabinet) of the Free State and it was regarded as inevitable following the instructions of the Minister of Defence forbidding officers and men of the Army Reserve to become members of the Blue Shirt organisation or of any secret society.

O'DUFFY ADAMANT.

In the meantime, General O'Duffy, the organiser of the Fascist National Guard, is adamant and is completing arrangements to maintain his organisation.

He is apparently ready to face the consequences personally, but he has advised all members of the "Arm" Reserve to withdraw from the Blue Shirts.

MENACE TO PEACE.

President Ramon de Valera, in an interview regarding his attitude towards the Blue Shirt movement, declared that his government had been obliged to forbid the Blue Shirts' parades because it constituted a menace to public peace and order. The Government had, proof that the Blue Shirts are armed and, besides, must regard the wearing of uniforms as a provocation since it clearly reveals the military character of the organisation.

As a political party, neither the Blue Shirts nor any other organisation would be persecuted by the authorities, said Mr. de Valera. Had the Blue Shirts formed an opposition party in Parliament and adopted peaceful, namely parliamentary, methods, it would never have become necessary to proceed against them.

RUTHLESSLY CRUSHED.

General O'Duffy's had had the alternative therefore, either to transform the Blue Shirt organisation into a political party along legal parliamentary lines and operate as an opposition party or be crushed ruthlessly by the Government, whose duty it was to take this course out of its responsibility for the well-being of the people and the safety of human life.

GOVERNMENT CRITICISED.

The Government of the Irish Free State was severely attacked in the Senate when the events of Sunday week came up for discussion. A leading member of the opposition shouted that the regular troops had refused to man the tanks which the Government benches. The Minister of Finance, speaking in the name of the Cabinet, declared that the latter had decided not to draw the standing army into the present political strife and that therefore the tanks were to be manned by members of the police force.

NINE GOALS A MATCH

REMARKABLE Ayr RECORD

SCOTTISH LEAGUE RESULTS

London, Aug. 22.

Ayr United, who started their Scottish League season by conceding seventeen goals in their first two games, replying only once, to-day confirmed the improvement marked on Saturday by scoring seven goals at Third Lanark.

That their defence needs to be considerably tightened up is, however, obvious. Although they won on Saturday and again to-day, their defence conceded seven goals in the two matches. Their figures for four games are remarkable. They have obtained four points and scored twelve goals against twenty-four, providing an average of nine goals per match!

Glasgow Rangers improved their goal average at the expense of Clyde, but St. Mirren were held to a draw by Airdrie.

Results of to-day's games, as called by Reuter, are appended:—
Clyde 1 Rangers 6
Hearns 4 Hamilton 1
St. Mirren 1 Airdrie 1

ELECTRICALLY-DRIVEN FERRY

BUILT FOR STAR FERRY CO.

LAUNCHED THIS MORNING

EXPERIMENTAL NEW SHIP

Amid the crackle of fireworks strung from her bows, the "Electric Star", the latest addition to the Star Ferry Fleet of vessels, was christened and launched this morning by Mrs. H. H. Priestley.

The ceremony took place at the South China Motor Ship Building and Repairing works where the vessel was built in the presence of a large gathering.

The Electric Star is electrically-driven and is one of the first diesel-electric ferry boats to be built in the British Empire. She will shortly be put on regular service between Hongkong and Kowloon.

MR. PATERSON'S SPEECH.

At a reception held subsequent of the launching Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson, chairman of the directors of the Star Ferry Co., Ltd., said:—On behalf of the "Star" Ferry Co., Ltd., I wish to thank Mrs. Priestley for successfully launching our new ferry boat. This is the sixth new vessel we have brought into service within the past nine years and if it behaves itself as well as the previous five as I am sure it will we shall be satisfied.

The machinery for propelling the "Electric Star" is a new type to be seen in this part of the world—in fact, I understand it is the first of its kind to be seen within the Empire. I will, however, leave Mr. Hodgson to describe to you the remarkable qualities of the engines.

I again thank Mrs. Priestley in kindly launching the "Electric Star" and I wish success to the builders, The South China Motor Ship Building and Repairing Works, Ltd.

MR. HODGSON'S SPEECH.

Mr. P. M. Hodgson, chairman of the directors of the South China Motor Shipbuilding and Repairing Works, in a brief speech, in which he described the vessel, said:—

You have just witnessed the christening and the launching of the new Star Ferry "Electric Star", and I must thank you for your attendance here this morning so early. As I have no doubt you all want to get away to your work, I will, if you will permit me, only detain you a few minutes. My Company is much indebted to Mrs. Priestley in coming here so early to launch the vessel, and in wishing the owners success, we trust this Ferry will prove to be not only remunerative but satisfactory in every way.

I will ask you to drink to the long life and success of the "Electric Star".

SLUM CLEARANCE

CONCERTED PLAN OF ATTACK

HEALTH MINISTER PRESSING

London, Aug. 22.
Local authorities throughout Great Britain are at present concentrating on schemes for the removal of slums and the provision of alternative accommodation.

For the most part these slums are situated in the older boroughs and are in the words of the Minister of Health, Sir Wilson Young, a relic of the time when the general law and bylaws did not prevent the establishment of housing conditions intolerable according to the present standard.

In a memorandum circulated a few months ago, the Minister of Health pointed out that the conditions of the present time were auspicious for a concerted and determined attack on the slums and called upon all local authorities concerned to submit to the Ministry, before the end of next month, definite schemes for the removal within five years of all insanitary and unsuitable dwellings.

NATIONAL BASIS.

Since the war, local authorities have, in most cases, considered housing in relation to new construction to meet the demands of a population whose needs have exceeded the accommodation available and within the last 14 years two million new houses have been built.

Only a small proportion of those have been definitely allotted to slum dwellers and although many progressive boroughs have done excellent work in tackling their local slum areas the action of the Health Minister in dealing with the subject on a national basis has stimulated interest generally and has enlisted public support for the drastic slum clearance scheme now being drafted.—British Wireless.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

NEW AUTUMN STYLES

By Joan Savoy

Looking cool and collected is a quality above price. It is the equivalent of appealing charm, as a matter of fact.

The dark background dresses with light touches, stand up better under wear and tear much better than the light ones.

For the business woman who must look her best to hold her job, a navy blue ensemble—dress and swagger coat—is an ideal outfit. The dress fits beautifully, has a novelty belt and short sleeves.

The swagger coat slips its full sleeves up almost to the elbow and hangs open. There is a blue and white polka dotted chiffon tie and big bow that trims the suit and looks fresh much longer than a white one would.

There is also a star-dotted suit that sponsors a new version of the popular red, white and blue motif. The background of the sheer fabric is blue, the generously sprinkled stars are white and their centres are red.

This dress has a collar and neck-bow of white organdie which is detachable for laundering. The jacket is a hip-length swagger, with short sleeves which have slits that show your arm through.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

A clear, flawless complexion is one of the first steps toward real charm. You must rid your skin of all blemishes such as black-heads and pimples if you would attain true beauty.

The nose and the crease in the chin are the first two places where blackheads appear. If you already have them, do something immediately to get rid of them.

There are a few simple steps which, if followed closely, will do the trick.

Lather your face with soap and warm water each night before you go to bed. Use a rough wash cloth if you wish, but many skin specialists advocate the palms of the hands as agents for lathering the face. When every particle of dust is gone, rinse the skin thoroughly.

Now apply hot towels. Dip a bath towel into a bowl of very hot water, wring it out and cover your face with it. Do this two or three times.

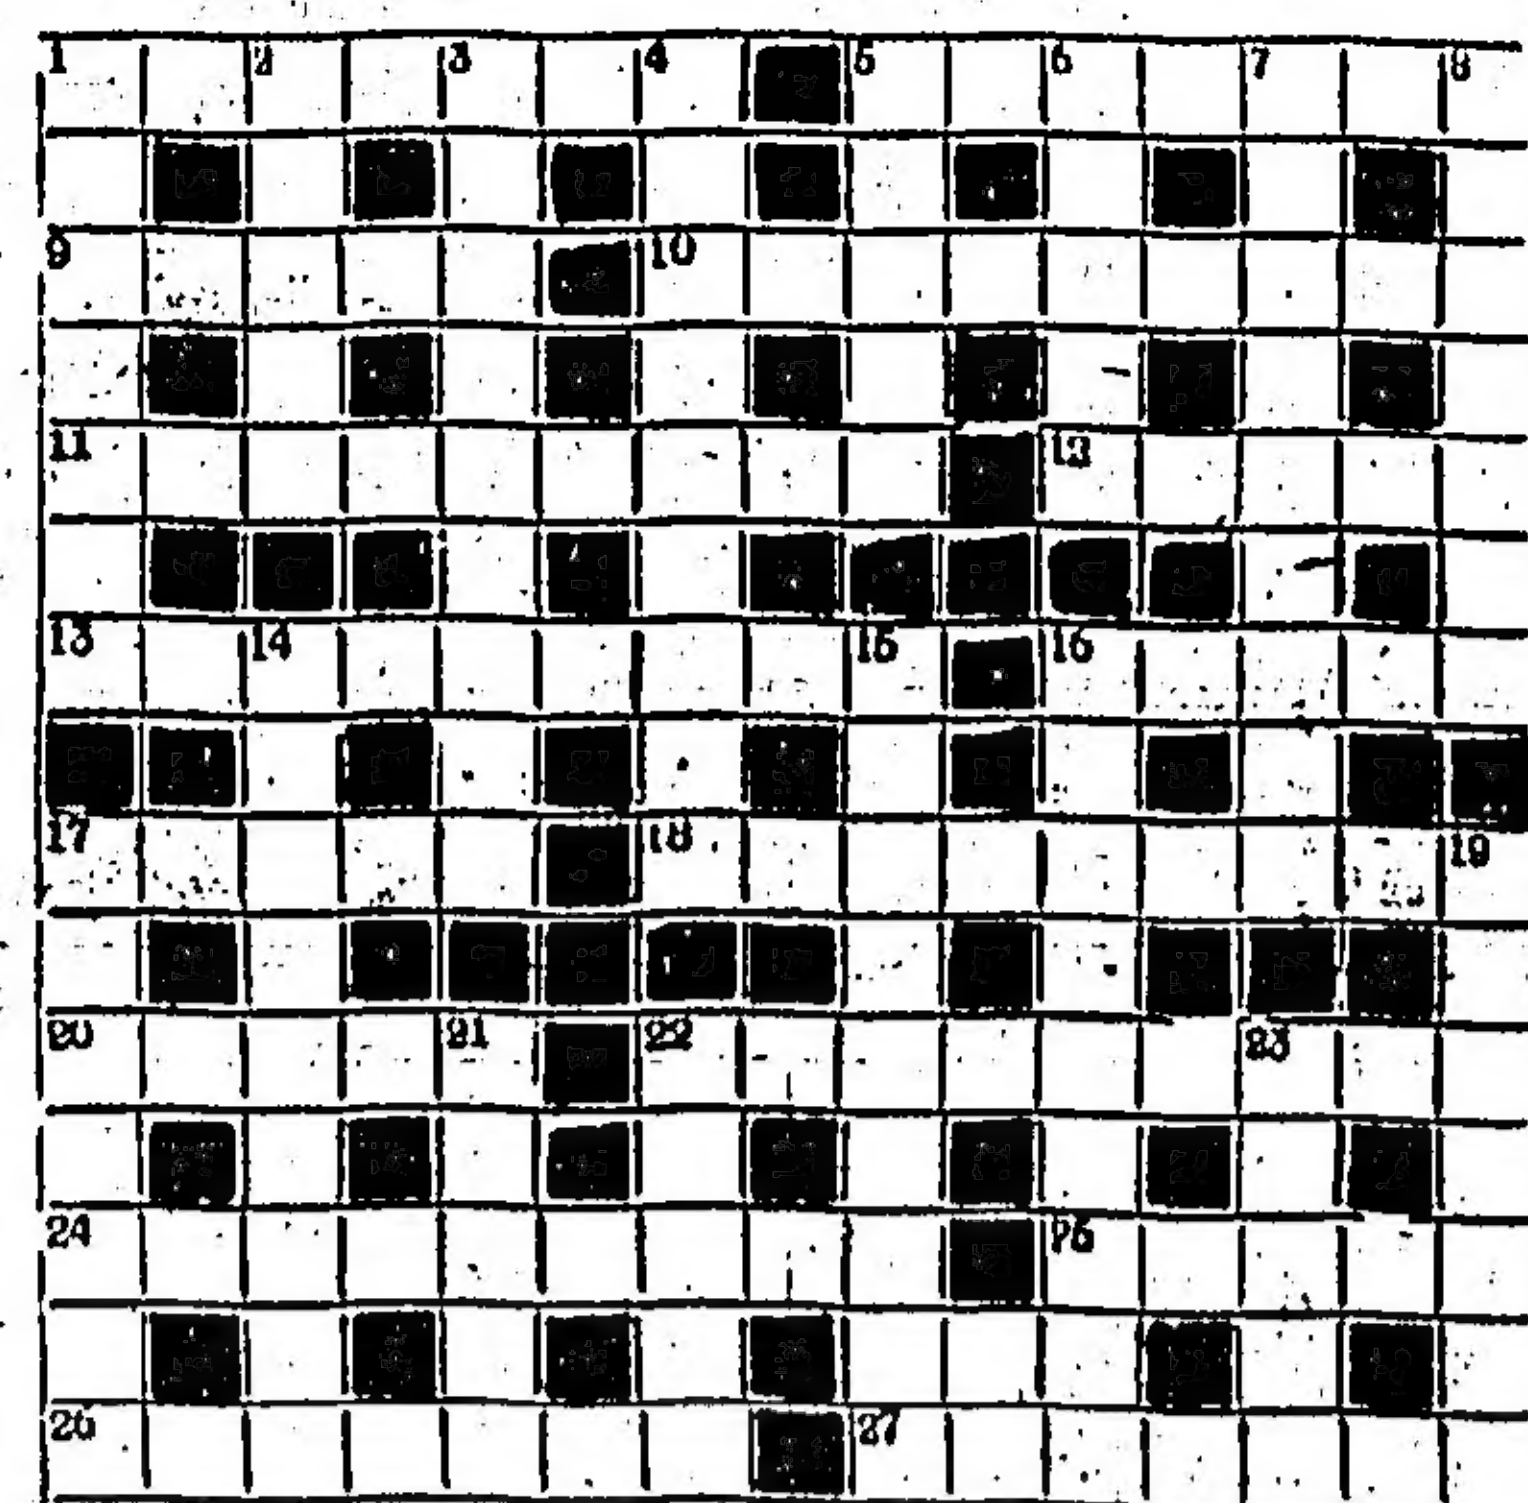

When your skin has been steamed, cover your forefingers with pieces of clean gauze and gently press out all the blackheads which come out easily. Don't pinch your skin hard enough to break or injure the delicate tissues. You can't expect to get each blemish the first night so take plenty of time. When you have finished squeezing, apply disinfectant.

Rinse your face with clear, ice cold water to close up the pores and then use an astringent to finish closing them. This last step is very important—there is no use opening the pores and then leaving them that way to catch more dust particles.

If your skin feels dry use a little tissue cream before you go to sleep.

Saving Money For Father.

"Father," said little Egbert slyly, "wouldn't you be glad if I saved you five shillings?"

"Certainly, I should be delighted, my son."

"Well, I've saved it for you already," said Egbert, edging towards the door. "You said if I brought a good report from school you'd give me five shillings. but I didn't." There are most certainly better ways than this in which the little ones can save money for their parents. If children can keep well the expenses of bringing up a family can be much reduced. A means by which many parents prevent childhood ailments is by using Baby's Own Tablets. Given at the first sign of "off-colour" more serious developments can be arrested, and pains, worry and doctor's bills avoided. Baby's Own Tablets are a remedy specially designed for babies and young children up to about seven. The tablets have a gentle, natural laxative and stomach-cleansing action. They are rapidly and pleasantly constipation and stomach troubles, flatulence, cramp, convulsions, loss of appetite, feverishness, colds, diarrhoea, worms, whilst during teething they ease pain in a remarkably speedy fashion. Guaranteed pure, free from opiates and narcotics, Baby's Own Tablets will satisfy the most exacting parent or most cautious doctor. Obtainable from chemists everywhere.

SALESMAN SAM

Sam Means: to Be Polite!

By Small

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

EVE BAYLESS, pretty copy writer in the advertising office of Bixby's department store, secretly marries DICK RADEN, a construction engineer. The marriage takes place hurriedly during a noon lunch hour. Dick wants Eve to give up working but she refuses. Eve is ambitious and knows she is being considered for the job of assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager at Bixby's.

Later that same day Eve learns that she is to receive the promotion. The first of her new duties is to make a trip to New York to meet FREDERICK CARTER, the dress buyer. It is necessary for Eve to leave Lake City that night.

CHAPTER II

Dick looked puzzled. "Leave me?" he repeated. "I don't understand. What in the world are you trying to tell me, sweet-heart?"

"Well—" Eve hesitated. "You know I told you that Alice Marshall is leaving Bixby's to open an office of her own and that I might have a chance to take her place? And you know how hard I've worked for a promotion?"

"Yes, Well?" Dick's voice didn't seem quite natural. It sounded a trifle grim. His gray eyes were sober, waiting.

"Well, Alice is going very soon. Sooner than Mr. Barnes expected. He called me into his office early this morning and told me I had a chance for the position. He said he and Mr. Bixby would decide about it this afternoon. And," Eve nervously took a sip of hot coffee. "He said this morning that if they decided I could have the job I was to leave for New York to-night. I was afraid to tell them this is our wedding day. I never would have got the promotion then."

Dick, white-faced, waited. She looked at him pleadingly but he did not help her. She must hurry. Time pressed.

"Well, darling, I hoped against hope. I wanted the position and I wanted you. And as long as we had planned to be married this noon I couldn't bear to spoil our wedding. And I didn't know for sure until the middle of the afternoon that the job is mine and that I'm to leave to-night for New York."

Through misty tears Eve saw Dick's firm, generous mouth, now a thin, straight streak across his white face. He asked, "For—how long?"

And she answered, "A week—nearly. I'll be home Sunday morn—" ing." Dick raised the ruby goblet to his lips. The harpist changed her melody to Victor Herbert's "Gypsy Sweetheart." Ever afterward at the sound of that air Eve was to relive that scene.

Dick was waiting for her to go on.

Eve said, "Can't you come along with me, darling?"

"Then you have decided to go?" Dick wasn't making it easy for her.

"I must, Dick! It's my big opportunity." This a trifle defiantly.

Then, regretting her manner a bit, she added, "If you'd come along, Dick, we could announce our marriage immediately. Come on, darling! We'll spend our honeymoon in New York. All I have to do there is look about—visit the smart shops and restaurants and the theatres. It will be fun!"

But Dick had his work too and slowly he shook his head. "No, it's impossible for me to get away before the job is finished in June. Just now we're pouring concrete and if there is a slip-up I'm responsible. People have been forced to dynamite whole foundation walls because they were laid out a few inches out of line. No, Eve. When a bunch of blueprints are handed to me I don't leave until the completed building is turned over to the owner and I know what he will find out later—that everything is o. k. I'm staying on the job."

Eve's lips quivered. He was willing for her to go. He didn't even quarrel over it as, unreasonably, she half hoped he would do. Was it possible that she did not mean as much to him as his work? Well, then, she would just show him! She delivered the next blow:

"My train leaves at eight o'clock," Eve announced. "I rushed out late this afternoon and packed a bag and sent it to the station."

"WHAT!" he cried. Hastily he paid the check and bundled Eve into her wraps. Then, telling her to wait inside until he brought the car, he dashed into the storm. In a few moments he was back and hurrying her under the canopy to the chugging roadster. They could see the lights of the Terminal Tower as they sped over the heights to the city. Dick's profile was rigid. He kept his eyes on the slippery street.

Eve could not endure it. "Dick!" Her voice was high-pitched, imploring.

He brought the car to a stop beside the cobblestone garden wall of some millionaire's estate.

"Oh, Dick!" she sobbed and flung herself into his arms.

He said soothingly. "There, there, sweetheart, don't cry. You'll miss your train. We have only 20 minutes. It's a bad night for driving and I'll have to step on it to make that train." Dick released her and started the motor. He had not kissed her.

"Richard Raden. If you don't kiss me this minute I'll NEVER go to New York," she told him through her tears.

And Dick kissed his wife, stepping on the accelerator and reached the station just a few minutes before eight o'clock.

"Where will you stop?" he asked as he saw Eve safely aboard the train. "Have you wired for a reservation?"

Eve named her hotel. "Bixby's made the reservation for me. And Freda Carter will be there the first two days." Eve smiled. She knew why he asked—flowers, telegrams, letters.

"But you'll be there alone the rest of the time? I don't like it, Eve. It isn't safe."

"Oh, darling, don't be quaint. Of course I'll be safe! I'll look up Irene Prentiss. Will she do for a chaperon?"

She kissed Dick goodbye and told him she would miss him.

He alighted and stood outside looking up at her through the car window. Tears dimmed her eyes, and there was a hurt, puzzled look in Dick's face—a little-boy look. A pain that was fiercely maternal twisted Eve's heart.

Of course Dick would go to a telegraph office immediately and send her a telegram to be waiting for her at the hotel in New York in the morning. Eve could almost guess the words he would use: "Missing you, darling. Hurry back. Love from Dick."

A gay group including a young man and two girls brushed past Dick. Then the man turned in sudden recognition and the girls, clinging to his arm, swung about with him. Apparently they were being introduced, although Eve could hear no part of the conversation through the double windows. Then, with a warning and a jerk, the long train glided out of the station. Dick was lost to Eve and her last glimpse of him included a pair of laughing girls and an irresponsible looking young man.

Suddenly Eve wanted to leap from the moving train to be with Dick.

"It's not only your wedding night, Eva Bayless," she told herself, "but it's also your first business trip to New York—and you know the importance of that."

As the train gathered momentum and plunged into the night Eve tried to read the evening paper but was unable to fasten her attention on anything but the department store advertisements, which were merely force of habit.

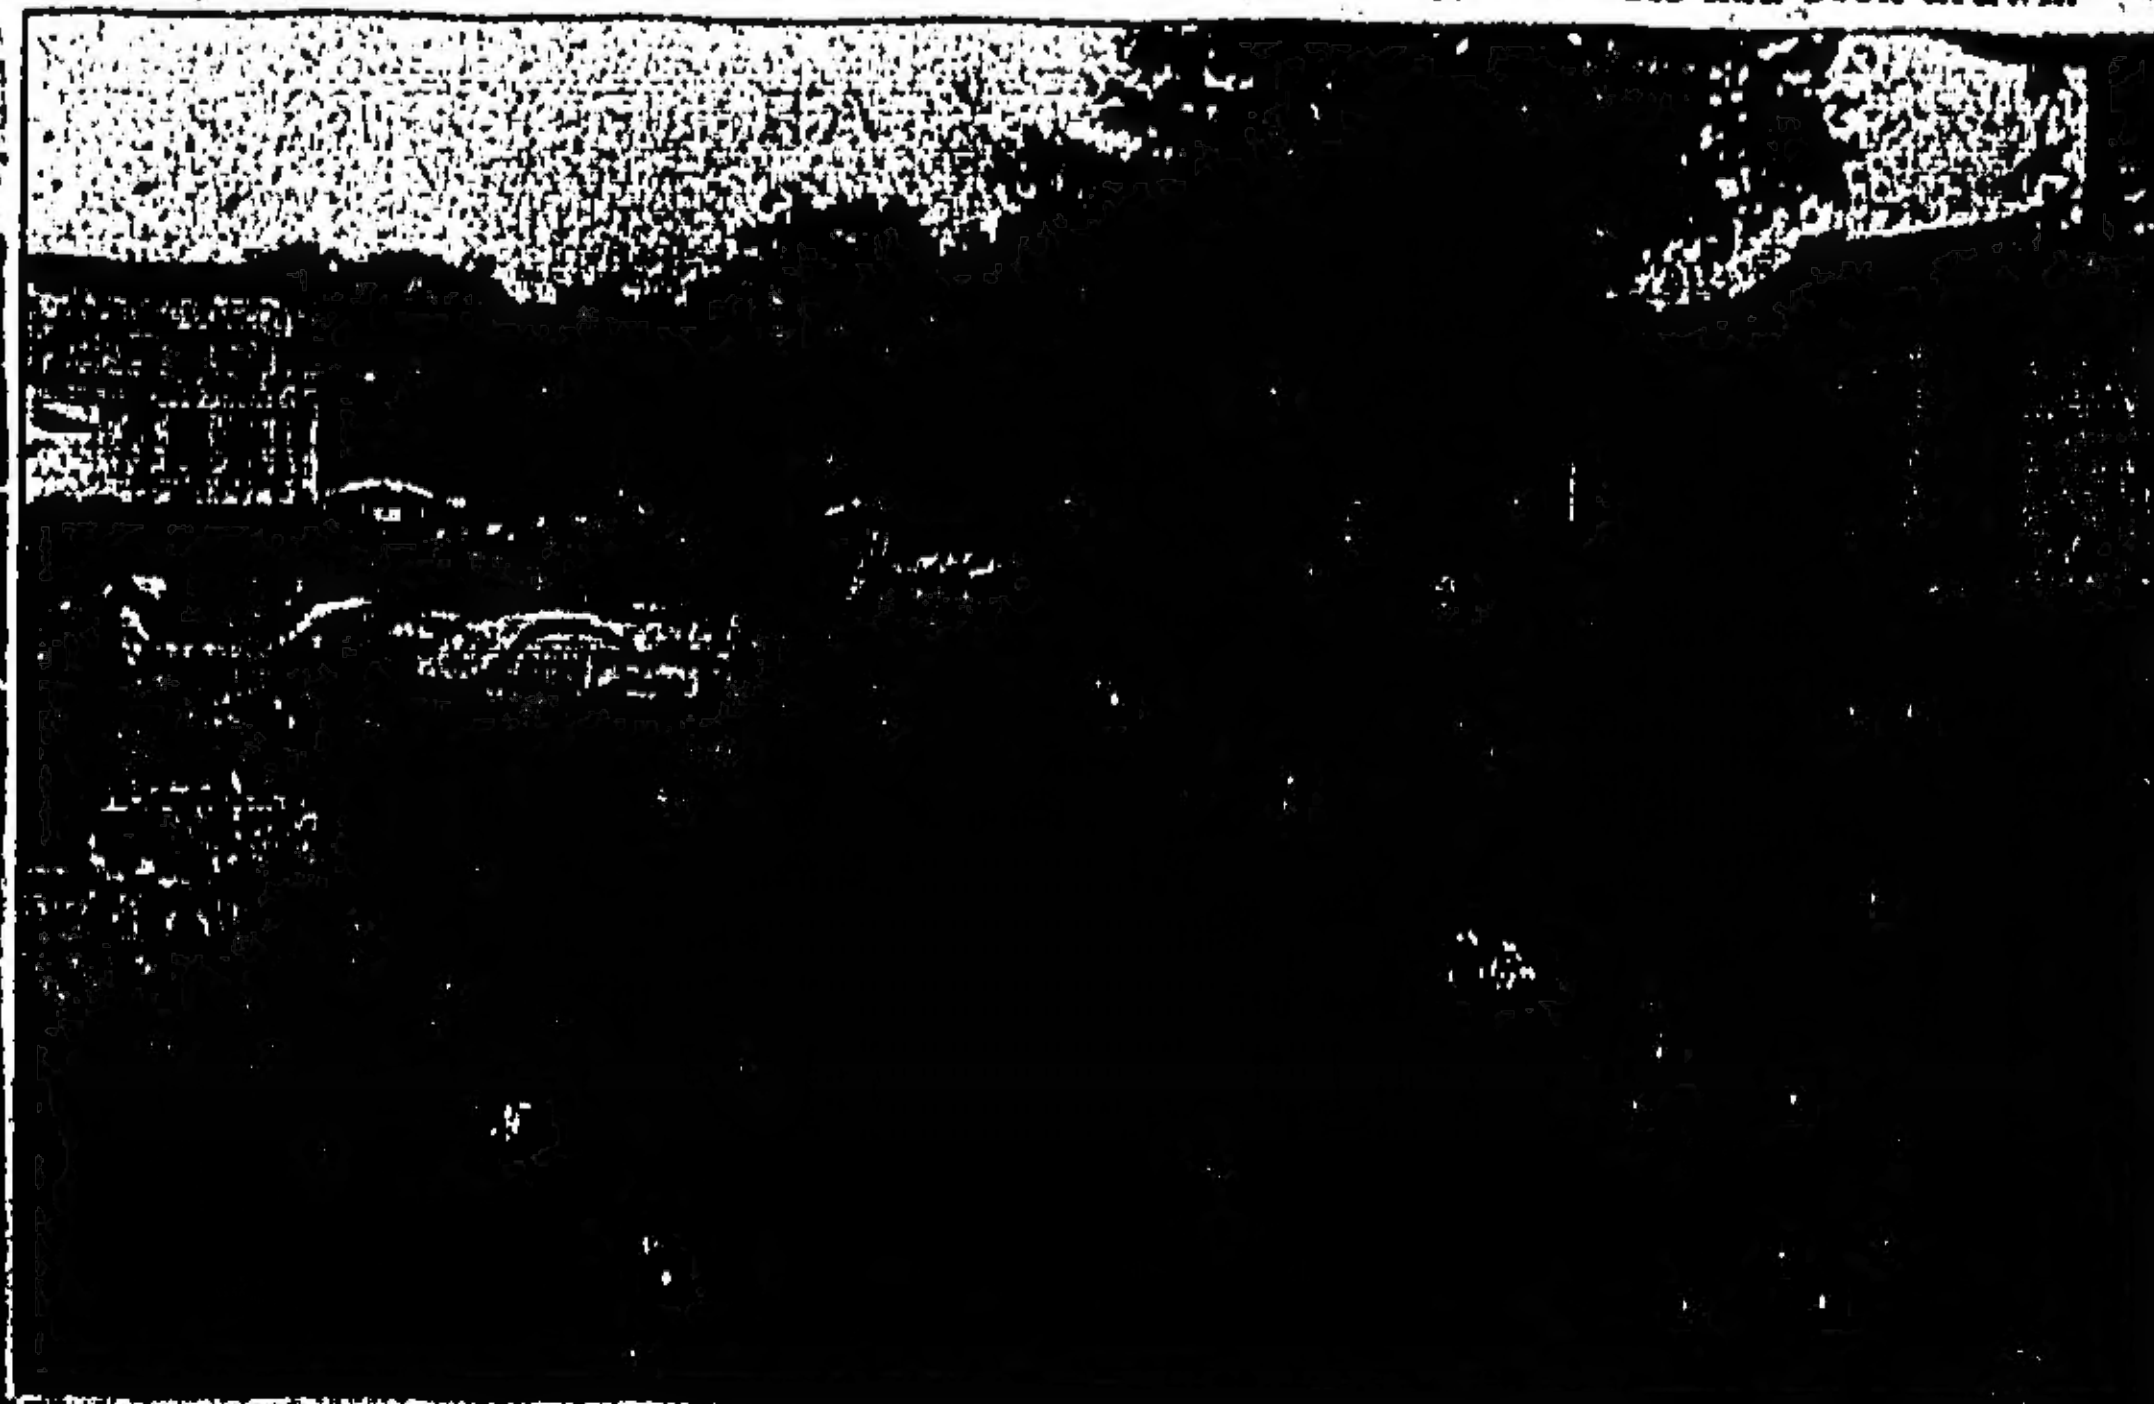

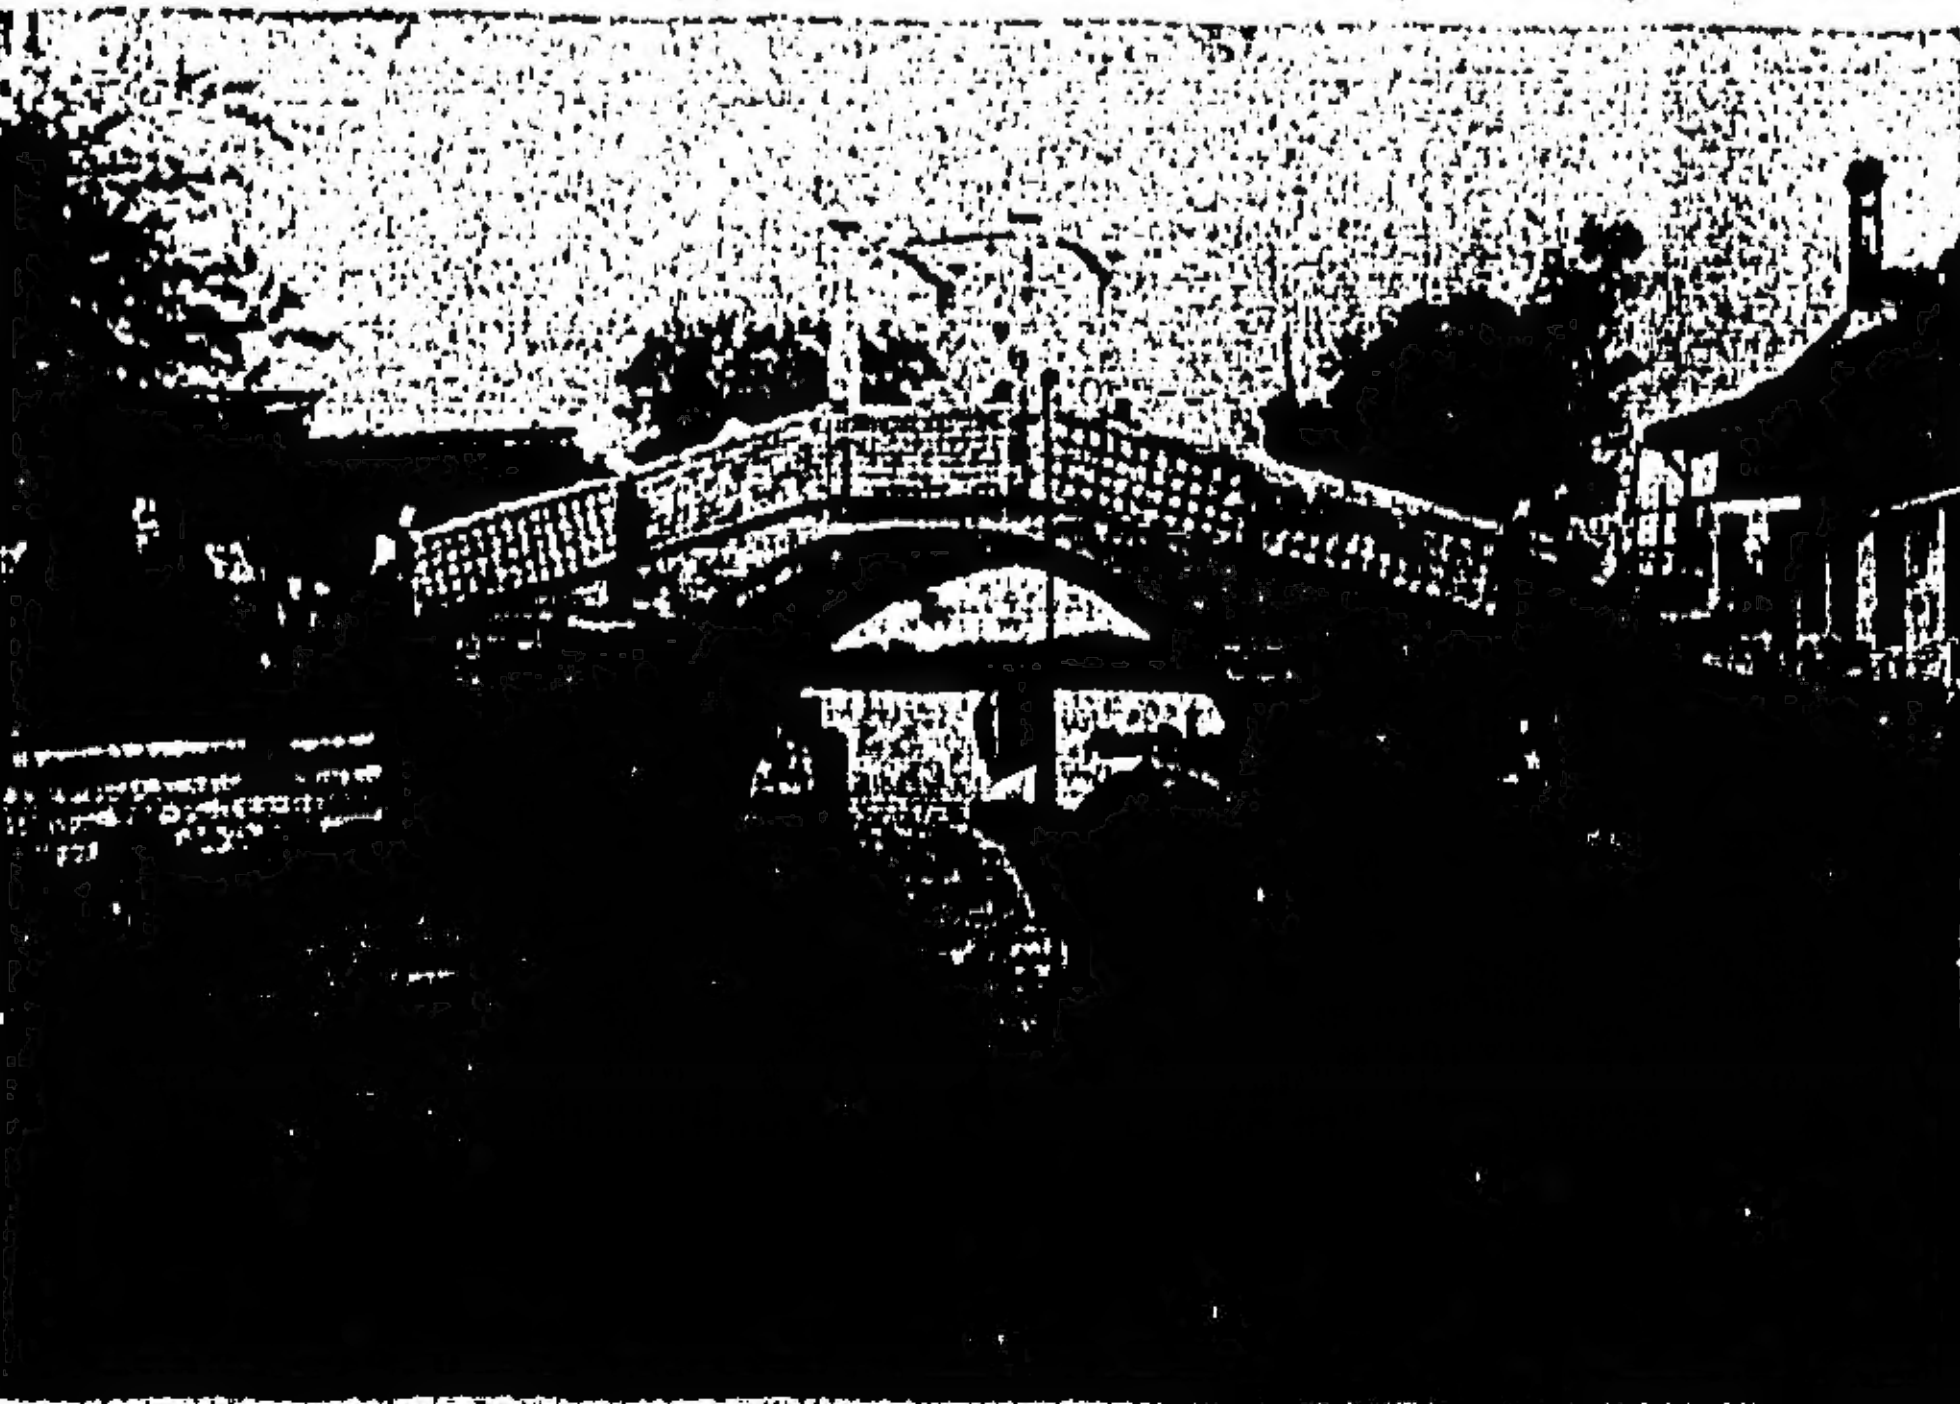

She rang for the porter and asked to have her berth made up early. Later she lay on her side for a long time, resting her head on her arm (Continued on Page 10.)

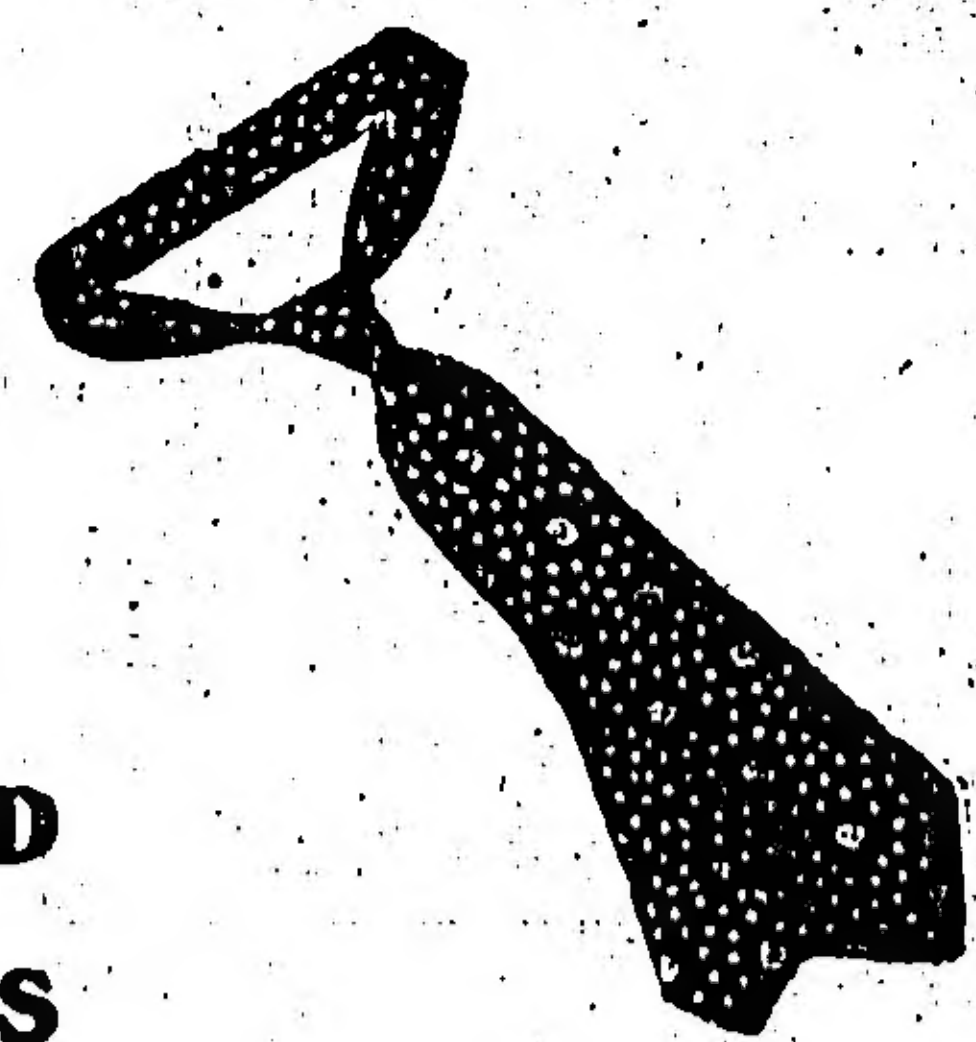

At an impressive ceremony in Chapel, the Memorial Hall to Chinese killed during the Sino-Japanese hostilities of last year was opened in the presence of a large number of Chinese officials and members of the public. A tablet on which was inscribed the names of Chinese officers killed during the hostilities was unveiled. Photo shows General Tai Chi performing the unveiling ceremony.

An intense passion for taking a chance is an outstanding characteristic of the Chinese race. This was demonstrated when Chinese formed almost the whole of a crowd of some 10,000 that thronged the Candooms grandstand to see the drawing of the first National State Lottery, which lasted from 1.30 p.m. to 8.15 p.m. The excellent picture above shows a portion of the great gathering and indicates clearly the anxiety and close attention with which the watchers followed the draw, many jotting down the numbers as they were announced. The picture inset shows the three drums from which the numbers were drawn—those of the tickets from the large one in the centre, and that, on the left, and of the prizes from that on the right. The small engraved teak balls are seen being poured into the middle drum. From beneath the drums run narrow brass channels down which the released balls rolled to the announcers. The ticket that won the first prize—299287—came down after two unsold tickets had been drawn.

OOI. LEONG TEIK writes:—

"I write with the greatest pleasure that I have received by taking Phosferine during my training for the 1931 Malayan Weight-Lifting Championships.

As I had to reduce some seven or eight pounds off my normal bodyweight in order to enable me to compete in the 9-stone class, I had to go into very strenuous training, and with the help of Phosferine, I not only won the championship of that class, but also the Individual Championship, and, in addition I broke a British Record.

I therefore have no hesitation in recommending Phosferine to any physical culturist or athlete, whether he be in ordinary training or preparing for a competition, as it GIVES ENERGY and ENDURANCE and RENEWS BROKEN-DOWN TISSUE."

Ooi Leong Teik, Penang.

COAL-PETROL

duction of petrol, regardless of the method.

There are two processes of production in the field—hydrogenation and low temperature distillation.

Hydrogenation is the combination of hydrogen with bituminous coal under great pressure and heat to obtain hydrocarbons, i.e., petrol spirit. It yields little in the way of by-products.

Low temperature distillation is a baking process which yields not only oil but coke and creosote in great quantities as by-products.

COSTS OF PRODUCTION.

The hydrogenation process is receiving great attention because it is the one adopted by Imperial Chemical Industries, which has spent large sums of money in experiments at its plant at Billingham-on-Tees. Aeroplane and motor-car tests have proved conclusively the high quality of the petrol produced there and at other hydrogenation plants.

What of the costs of production? Prior to the latest improvements in the process of hydrogenation, it was calculated that this process would produce petrol at 9d. a gallon; if a minimum of 200,000 tons were made, the price including a reasonable rate of interest for the capital employed. In the production of 200,000 tons of petrol 800,000 tons of coal would be consumed. Employment would be given to 5,000 men.

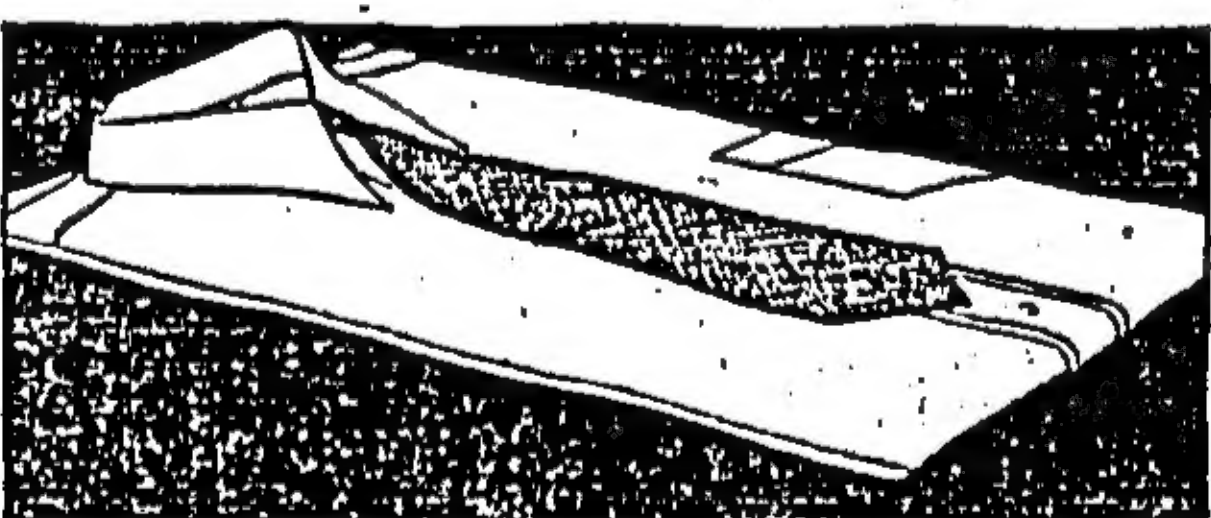

These figures cover only a very small percentage of our annual petrol requirements. If they could all be met by nationally produced coal-petrol at least 100,000 men would find employment in the new industry.

WHEAT AND WHAT?

The calling of a wheat conference in London this week has an interest altogether apart from its specific objectives. It serves to confirm the belief that the World Economic Conference is never likely to meet again in full session, that success in international cooperation in the economic field is only likely to be achieved by smaller gatherings dealing with special subjects. This is the lesson that was learned from the failure of original gathering to achieve any progress. Regardless of later events, the conference will be remembered for at least three important developments including clarification of American policy. Even Americans were amazed to discover that their Government was trying to go in one direction with its foreign policy while travelling rapidly in a contrary direction with domestic policy. The conference forced that discovery; some of the delegates had to go to London to make it. And although the ineptitudes and contradictions of Washington's conduct added to the irritation other nations felt at the sudden change in American policy, that policy was linked with a new and warming hope of recovery which somewhat thawed even a chilly gold bloc. Nations which had no real recovery programme of their own were glad to see a definite and upward direction established by one powerful country. The London conference may come to be remembered as the occasion for the launching of a permanent stable money policy by a great nation. If carried to success, the purpose announced by President Roosevelt to give the dollar a steady value so that it will buy as much in the next generation as in this, would mark a veritable economic revolution. And for historians the economic conference probably will date an era of economic nationalism. It disclosed as perhaps nothing else could the limits to which economic internationalism is confined at the present stage of human thinking. It brought a recognition of the amazing extent to which national economic systems are politically organized so that trade is becoming more and more an exchange between governments instead of individuals. And it showed clearly that nations do not yet understand that it may be as profitable to buy as to sell. It further demonstrated that no nation is willing to sacrifice domestic trade for foreign. And with this it seems we must rest content with the present state of affairs.

NOTES OF THE DAY

AUSTRO-GERMAN TENSION.

The Austro-German situation continues to engage the attention of all Europe and feeling against Germany seems to be hardening. That a grave view is taken in London of recent developments is strikingly revealed by the establishment of a new Consular post at Innsbruck. If an attempt is made, as threatened, to stage a Nazi coup d'etat, it will be managed, internally, from Innsbruck. Hence Britain's desire to have an unbiased observer on the spot.

ITALY'S POSITION.

Italy's promise of support to the Austrian Chancellor is satisfactory, though no other course was likely in view of Italian policy. Relations between Germany and Italy are not so happy as they were at the outset and Signor Mussolini certainly does not desire a Nazi-controlled Austria upon his borders. There is, in fact, little scope for close collaboration between Fascist States. Their creed is essentially Nationalistic, and in a spirit which cannot fail to breed rivalries.

NAVAL RACE.

America seems to be well embarked upon a highly dangerous naval policy and no-one is likely to be deceived by the claim that no naval race has commenced in the Pacific because Japan and the United States do not intend to exceed treaty limits. The treaty restrictions mean very little. Within three years, existing naval pacts will have expired and the prospects of a satisfactory recasting are exceedingly remote. Only a complete change in outlook can remove the suspicions created by events of the last twelve months and what hope is there of that?

THE "NEW DEAL"

Most of the players in the New Deal think they are working in a madhouse. They say that, privately—more than half in earnest. One presidential adviser, a nationally-known economist, summed up the situation when he confided: "No man has a rational picture of what is going on in Washington to-day." It is difficult to convey an accurate impression of this atmosphere: Hope mingled with misgivings. Amateurs and professionals sailing into uncharted economic seas. Constant attempts to reconcile the methods and aims of the emergency salvationists and the long-range planners. Confusion and incoherence of organisation beneath strong men too busy to be bothered with details. Rumours, half of them false, flying through the corridors. Men irked by delay and contemplative men irritated by haste. But, above all, a common driving urge to move forward through the forests of uncertainty.

UNIVERSITIES IN BRITAIN

At the recent opening of a new hall of residence at University College, Exeter, the hope was expressed that before long the college would be raised to the full status of a university, with the right to confer degrees. University College of Southampton is also eagerly looking forward to the day when it will become the official University of Wessex, while not many years have elapsed since the University College of Reading was transformed into a recognized university. It is thus apparent that the great force which during the nineteenth century multiplied the universities of England several times over has not yet spent itself. But there is beginning to develop a general feeling that perhaps England is getting too many universities.

LASTING VALUE?

The principal of University College, Exeter, Mr. John Murray, has himself expressed a doubt whether everything that has been done in the way of increasing university facilities will stand the test of time. This indicates a very reasonable and desirable attitude of caution. It would be in the highest degree unfortunate if the movement to found new universities attained such proportions that it conferred full university status on institutions not intellectually qualified to receive it. Everyone will agree that the multiplication of universities must

WISE HUSBANDS DRESS TO PLEASE WIVES

"I LIKE YOU BEST IN THAT SUIT"

By JOAN KENNEDY

THERE is no doubt about it. Men, taking them in the mass, are bigger-minded than women. The externals of life do not worry them. What is in the parcel counts for more than does the paper and string of its wrappings.

You may jump upon me right away and declare that men are attracted by pretty women. Of course they are—as bees are attracted by gay and scented flowers. But the velvet rover doesn't stay long unless the lovely bloom holds honey. And men—well! men marry plain women as well as pretty ones. An amazing number of very ordinary-looking women wear wedding rings.

WOMEN NOTICE EXTERNALS.

But my sex? Frankly, we are affected by externals. Though a woman does not fall in love with a man's suit, she is influenced by his personal appearance.

A man may say blithely to his wife, "I'd love you just the same, my dear, if you went around in sackcloth!" but he knows she never will be satisfied with sackcloth or show herself so garbed. A woman enjoys making the best of what the Creator has given her, even when it is a bad bargain. If circumstance forced her into sackcloth she would see that the cut was good, the accessories right, and she would relieve potential garb by plentiful embroidery.

And, just as every natural woman likes to make the best of herself, so she likes to make the best of her belongings.

A husband is a belonging, and every married woman who has an atom of love left wishes to see her man looking his best. Only men sleep and slack sartorially when-ever they can.

This is one of the pin-pricks in the propinquity of marriage. When you hear your wife say, "I love you in the suit!" then take notice. There is more behind the remark than perhaps you realise. It is a literal fact.

FATEFUL SUITS.

There are clothes you own and ways of wearing them which lose you a great deal of love. Rather terrible to think that it can be so, but you can believe me when I say that the woman who loves her man well enough to notice what he wears loves him more delightfully when he wears clothes which suit him.

Dress counts in marriage. I know a big-patterned suit whose wearer went eventually through the Divorce Court. If the story of that broken romance could be written it would have to begin in a tailor's shop. There was a pink shirt which caused a lovers' tiff and a gaudy tie to which could be directly traced a woman's tantrums.

Like the red rag to a bull so is the untidy man to the woman who cares about his appearance. It takes an Adonis to look well as a tramp. Women who have untidy husbands know a passionate envy of those women whose men are always tidy, whose nails never go into mourning, whose chins never get that "rest" which the lazy follows of life imagine to be so jolly for their jowls.

LOOK IN YOUR MIRROR.

Trivialities count with women. Often a man gets puzzled as to what has upset his wife, but were he to look in the mirror he might find his solution.

Few women care for the fop but all women who love men care as to whether those men are neglecting themselves or looking their best. And it is true that a great many women love more dearly when their eyes are not offended. As a sex we are like that.

Even a mother will own that her maternal love wells up more strongly when she sees her children clean and lovely. The eye is charmed and the heart responds.

It must be that women are more fastidious as a sex than are men. They are repulsed by the ugly and unclean, by unloveliness, by lack of taste, and when their menfolk slack sartorially they are irritated. They feel that such details are a true indication of character.

The man who studies his wife's taste and does his best to please her eye always gets his reward. He finds it worth while. He keeps her pleased and pleasant.

Try it yourself when you are on holiday this summer. I dare say you can remember your wife having said she always thought you looked your best when you wore blue, or brown, or some other colour. Go out to-morrow, buy yourself a new tie of that favoured colour and keep it till the first day of your holiday. Wearing it then will give her the greatest pleasure.

SECRETS OF BLISS.

Domestic peace often hinges on small things, because small things make up the home world. Big troubles a woman can tackle, and over them come up trumps, but let the man she loves wear the clothes she loathes and he can easily lose by doing so.

A husband is very like a brown paper parcel. It is what is inside which matters most. His wife knows that, just as she understands that convention confines her man to the drabness of brown paper. But, womanlike, she wants a neat parcel, likes to decorate it and make the ends tidy, then to set her seal upon it before it appears in public.

Married men find that it pays to let their wives help decide their wardrobes. Jack knows that Jill will always say: "I like you in that suit" when the pattern and style are of her choosing.

COAL-PETROL

BY AN INDUSTRIAL CHEMIST

The Very Idea!

SURFER, SO GOOD

By Eddie Kelly, No Good

I must go down to the sea again,
To the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is an old surf-board,
And a wave just one inch high.

THAT'S what surfing does for us. We just break out into a rash of verse.

We went out to Repulse Bay on Sunday to have a regatta of our own. All these things we did without one regatta. What a sport!

Shore thing!

Surfboard riding is the greatest sport we can think of at the present moment, but unless one is very careful and lies absolutely still on the board one is apt to get damp.

The waves were two or three inches high when we ventured out on our board, and were we all wet?

It was a good job we had our bathing costume on.

Our headache suggested that we tack a few planks around the board to keep the water out. We told her nastily that when we wanted a sampan we'd get one.

We are glad that the government is not going to let surf-riders endanger their lives at this new sport.

We ourselves had a narrow escape from being battered to death when we weren't looking.

Fortunately, we keep cool in emergencies, and we let the surf-board go just in time. But, as the headache asked us, what would have happened if we had been out of our depth. The answer is yes!

But you can't keep us Kellies away from danger. The more dangerous a sport the more it appeals to us. We were recognised as one of the most daring exponents of marbles when we were at school, and it is on record that we once caught, single handed and without any assistance, a rabbit.

So, despite our narrow escape, we are still keen on surfing. Not in the sea, of course. We have our wife to consider, but in a swimming bath, or somewhere where you can make your own conditions.

"Hullo, everybody! Station Z-BC broadcasting the big Horatius fight from the banks of the Tiber. A wonderful sight, believe me. The Seven Hills are packed, and you couldn't find room for a victor's rod in the chariot-parking areas.

Lars Forsena and the Tuscan lads are having their picture taken for the Bacchus Breweries, Ltd., who supplied them with their world-famous products during training.

"Horatius looks in the pink, thanks to McRoman's Yeast Tablets. What a dandy shield he's carrying! Brassbounders, Ltd., certainly turned out a nice piece of work there.

"Bang! Crash! Oh, listeners, this is great! Horatius is swinging a great blade. The Tuscans are falling like nine-pins. Oh! Larwood wasn't in it with this lad. Aunus is down; Selus has gone; so has Picus! So has Ocnus! Lausulus is out!

"Here comes the great Lord of Luna for his issue. Bang! The Lunatics will need a new Lord, I'm afraid. Hal Hal!

"Stand by a minute, listeners. Horatius is wiping about 14 Tuscans off his sword. I thought so. The supply of Tuscans has run out, and Horatius has been declared champion Bridgeholder of the world. A great lad! He clipped 28.5sec. off the record. Good-day, everybody!"

through the coalfields of the country.

Are we now to proceed to create another great industry—that of coal-petrol—to rank in importance with the electricity and gas industries? By liquefying one of our great national assets are we to speed up the present trade revival?

Mr. MacDonald made it clear that the Government guarantee, which is for a period of 10 years from April next, is extended to

THE EZRA CASE

LITTLE HOPE OF LENIENCY

PROSECUTOR'S ATTITUDE

San Francisco, Aug. 17. The hopes of Mr. Judah Ezra and his brother, Isaac, that they would be given exceptionally lenient treatment by the courts in return for the services of the former in exposing the activities of the narcotic smuggling ring in which they have confessed to being partners were rudely shattered today.

The Federal District Attorney, P. H. McPike, who has conducted the investigation of the so-called "Shanghai Dope Case," told the United Press this afternoon that he would recommend that Mr. Judah Ezra should be sentenced to a maximum seventeen years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Mr. McPike also revealed that he will ask the Court to impose a heavy monetary fine upon the former Shanghai business man, in addition to the prison sentence.

The prosecutor did not state definitely what recommendations would be made to the bench with regard to Mr. Isaac Ezra, whose brother has sought to shield him throughout the sensational disclosures of the past two months.

CODE SOLVED.

It was gathered, however, that Mr. McPike's recommendations as to Mr. Isaac Ezra would not differ greatly from those which he will make with regard to the brother, who has repeatedly avowed himself to be the sole leader of the drug ring.

Mr. McPike told the United Press today that his office had finally succeeded in solving the secret code used by the narcotic smugglers. Messages sent by various members of the ring, Mr. McPike said, showed conclusively that the two brothers were equally guilty of directing the operations of the smugglers, which the prosecutor described as "enormous."

Mr. Judah Ezra already has been sentenced to deportation from the United States, upon the completion of any prison sentence which may be given him. Having become an American citizen, Mr. Isaac Ezra is not subject to deportation. —United Press.

MUNITIONS DEPOT CATCHES FIRE

A BAD SCARE IN LILLE

Paris, Aug. 20. A panic was created on Thursday among the inhabitants of the city of Lille by the news that a big subterranean munitions depot in the nearby village of Airo-sur-Lys had for some unknown reason caught fire and that the flames were slowly eating their way towards the main depot. The munitions dump which was originally established by British troops during the war and is only 200 feet from the highroad, was reported to contain mainly gas bombs and the fire was therefore fraught with the gravest danger for the entire region. The fire was extinguished before serious peril developed.

PACIFIC COAST RELIEVED

RAIN SENDS DOWN MERCURY

San Francisco, Aug. 17. Th perspiring inhabitants of the Pacific Coast today experienced some relief from the extreme heat, which has already caused eleven deaths this week, when heavy down-pours of rain, accompanied by lightning and thunder, sent the mercury down several points.

The electrical disturbances, however, increased the forest fire menace. Eight fires are reported

QUEER MURDER CASE IN U.S.

FOUR OF FAMILY POISONED

WARRANT FOR DEAD MAN

New York, Aug. 17. A man who identified himself as Mark Shank, of Akron, Ohio, and who described himself as an attorney, was arrested at Hot Springs, Arkansas, today, on a charge of murdering four members of a family of five.

Shank is alleged to have administered poison to Mr. Alvin Cooley, 40, of Akron, his wife and two of their three sons, one aged eleven and the other seven.

Mr. Cooley was driving his family in his car when he died at the wheel. The machine crashed into a fence and neighbouring farmers, on arriving to give whatever help they could, found four dead bodies. Only one of the three brothers, who apparently had not been poisoned, was alive.

Meanwhile the sheriff at Wooster, Ohio, had issued a warrant for the arrest of "a man named Cooley" on a charge of stealing receipts that were to be used as evidence in the trial of Clarence Braucher for forgery. Shank was Braucher's attorney.—Reuter.

H.M.S. York, which the Admiralty are sending, will carry the band of the Second Battalion Black Watch and the Air Ministry are contributing sixty models of different types of British aircraft.

Among the many varied events arranged for the week, Sir John Squire, the noted poet and critic, will lecture in English literature, Mr. Douglas Kennedy and a team from English Folk Dance Society will demonstrate old English Country and Morris dances, and Messrs. MOROCCO FIGHT NEARS END

CAMPAIGN MEETS WITH SUCCESS

Rabat, Aug. 18. The French campaign in Morocco to subdue rebellious tribesmen and to realize Marshal Lyautey's dream of bringing Morocco within the Pax Gallica is nearing completion after years of guerrilla warfare.

During the latest advances of four mobile columns of French and native levies, which are clearing up the last unpacified portion in the great Atlas mountains, over 5,000 Berbers entered the French lines to hand over their arms.

The submission of these fierce warriors has ended the siege on the last strategical citadel of the tribesmen, and the task of pacification in the high and arid mountains of the Grand Atlas is now practically finished.—Reuter.

presented to Mrs. Priestley as a memento of the occasion by Mr. Hodgson. The bowl was inscribed "Presented to Mrs. H. H. Priestley for the kindness in christening the Double-ended Diesel electric ferry 'Electric Star' at the South China Motorship Building and Repairing Works, Hongkong, on Wednesday 23rd, August, 1933."

Mrs. Priestley suitably acknowledged the gift.

DESCRIPTION OF VESSEL.

For a long time it has been urged that the Diesel Electric Ferry has a great deal to recommend it, and in theory most people have been agreeing with this view. Each port authority or ferry-boat owner, however, has always been inclined to leave it to the other man to be the first to start.

It is with gratification, therefore, that Hongkong is able to boast the construction of one of the first diesel-electric ferry boats within the Empire and a type, moreover, remarkable for its unorthodox propulsion.

This ship named the Electric Star, has horizontal diesel engines driving the generators for supplying current to the motors, and is in every way of such a special and unusual type that it is worth detailed consideration. It is a double-ended ferry with a single screw and a rudder at each end. Owned by the Star Ferry Company, it will operate on the regular service between Hongkong and Kowloon.

DIMENSIONS OF FERRY.

The dimensions of the new Star Ferry are:—
Length over all 116'
Between perpendiculars 110'
Beam moulded 28'
Depth moulded 10'9"
Draft loaded 8'6"

approximately. The general appearance is very similar to the existing ferries with the exception of the shorter funnel, the beclavatt windows in the first class deck shelters, and the third class deck where there will be considerably more available passenger space than on previous ferries having exactly the same overall dimensions.

This is due principally to the absence of the large engine and boiler casings. The under-deck arrangement is, however, totally different, the machinery being installed in three separate watertight compartments instead of one as on the existing ferries. The central compartment is termed the generator and pumping room and the immediate adjacent compartment separated from the former by water tight bulk heads and quick action hand operated water tight doors are termed the propulsion motor rooms. The remaining compartments are very similar to the existing ferries. It will be noted, therefore, that with the better subdivision arrangement passengers are assured of greater safety in the unlikely event of the ferry being damaged in collision or groundings.

ARDUOUS DUTY.

Again the centre of gravity of the machinery is much more than in the existing ferries and even with the finer lines the stability should be at least equal to its predecessors.

The contract for the ferry, was placed with the South China Motor Ship Building and Repairing Works. The main engine and auxiliary machinery has been supplied by Messrs. The Premier Gas Engine Company who have subcontracted with the British Thomson Houston Company for the electrical equipment. The electrical casings at each end of the vessel for handling the anchors have been supplied by Messrs. Emerson Walker. The auxiliary generator and compressor set has been supplied by Messrs. Russell Newbury in conjunction with the British Thomson Houston Company and Messrs. Renell. Messrs. Drysdale have supplied the pumps. The hand steering gear which is of a special type and the water tight doors and gear have been constructed at the yard. The simple balanced rudders and stern frame by the Deutsche Werft Company.

In the new ferry boat one via-via engine will be fitted and will drive a direct current British Thomson Houston generator with suitable exciter gear. The generator will supply current to one of the two propelling motors at a time according to the direction of the ship.

FIRST OF SERIES?

It is said that the new ferry will be, in all probability, only the first of a series to replace all the steam ferries of the Hongkong Kowloon Ferry fleet. This appears to be a very ambitious programme of reconstruction and one which, no doubt, will take place satisfaction there is every reason to suppose she should give.

The Crossley Premier in her engine is specially adapted for the purpose to which it is put and will permit of direct control from the bridge. Differing from the present type it will be coupled with electric generators at each end of the boat which will form the actual driving power, only one generator operating at a time and not both as at present. The boat will be provided with simple balanced rudders. This description is in parts somewhat incoherent, but if for the expression "one generator operating at one time" we substitute "one propelling prime mover," then we begin to get something of a picture of what the new ship will be like.

STAR FERRY LEADS.

Pilot-house control, similar to the Ward Leonard system, will be invaluable to a ship navigating the crowded waters of the Harbour. In fact, so much of an improvement will this ship be over existing vessels, that it would not be surprising to learn that other owners of similar ships in the Far East and elsewhere had made up their minds to follow the example of the Star Ferry Company.

The engine in the new ship is a Crossley-Premier 4-cycle via-via KOB unit, and has eight cylinders opposed operating four cranks, and the rated power of the unit is to be 540 b.h.p. at 270 revolutions. It is to be noted, however, that this engine is capable of developing 600 horsepower at 300 revolutions and a maximum of 660 b.h.p. for one hour. In spite of the tendency there is today to suggest that if diesel-electric propulsion is chosen, only the highest speeds of prime mover should be used, the owners have deliberately chosen a slower speed with a more moderate rating. The main B.T.H. generator is a 300 kw. unit of D.C. type, and this supplies power for propulsion to one of two 420 shaft horse-power propelling motors. One of these is operating at the particular end of the ship which happens to be the "stern" end, while the other is merely idling. Control of the propelling motor in operation is from the bridge.

THE CONTROL EQUIPMENT.

The control equipment for this vessel is of special B.T.H. design and is the result of experience obtained over a period of 10 years, during which the B.T.H. Co. have been actively working on electric ship-propulsion problems as they arose on the numerous equipments they have supplied. The control system is a distinct advance in that it positively prevents overloads on the electrical system, propeller-shafting and engine by a power-limiting device instead of the more usual overload trip gear, the operation of which ordinarily results in total interruption of the power supply should an overload occur. Furthermore, this B.T.H. control system does not depend on a contract-making device or system of relays for its efficient and effective operation either with the vessel under way or when manoeuvring and reversing. All the wires and cables were supplied by Callender's.

THE GUESTS.

Among the guests invited were, Hon. & Mrs. J. J. Paterson, Hon. & Mrs. C. Gordon Mackie, Mr. & Mrs. A. H. Compton, Mr. & Mrs. T. B. Wilson, Mr. & Mrs. Stanley H. Dodwell, Mr. & Mrs. J. H. CHEVROLET'S PROVEN VALVE-IN-HEAD SIX CYLINDER ENGINE

BACK IN 1928, CHEVROLET UPSET ALL PRECEDENT IN THE LOW-PRICE FIELD BY INTRODUCING A SIX-CYLINDER VALVE-IN-HEAD ENGINE IN A CAR OF LOWEST PRICE.

Since then, the engineering staff of Chevrolet has been concentrating solely on that one ideal type of motor—refining it, developing it, perfecting it, bringing it to its highest point of efficiency. The experience gained in building millions of these sixes, plus the experience gained by millions of Chevrolet owners in driving them, have been applied to the perfection of this engine. As a result: when you go to buy a new Chevrolet, you know, in advance, that the engine is going to give you long dependable service at low cost. You know that, first because the world's largest builder of sixes has produced it. And secondly, because millions of Chevrolet owners have tried out this engine on the road—have proved it to be dependable.

YORKSHIRE LOSE AN EXCITING GAME
KENT LOWER CHAMPIONS' COLOURSDOUBLES CENTURIES FOR MEAD
COOK, HAMMOND & LEYLAND
VERITY TAKES NINE WICKETS
IN AN INNINGS

London, Aug. 22.

Kent followed up last week's handsome victory at Dover against Northants by an even more spectacular accomplishment on the same ground to-day, when they beat Yorkshire, the champions, by 44 runs after one of the most exciting matches of the season.

In recording this achievement Kent earned the distinction of being the second team this summer to lower the colours of the champions in the county league programme. The Hops county have now won outright their last four matches and their last five games have given them 68 points out of a maximum 76.

As both Essex and Sussex won the leading positions in the league table remain unchanged, Yorkshire occupying first place with Sussex, Essex and Kent following in that order.

VERITY AND FREEMAN.

The Dover match produced some unusual cricket including a sporting declaration by Yorkshire and fine bowling performances by Verity and Freeman.

Kent, batting first, succeeded in scoring 332, to which B. H. Valentine, maintaining his consistent form, contributed 90.

Yorkshire, thanks entirely to Maurice Leyland, who batted magnificently to hit up 210 not out, reached 333 for 6 wickets and then applied the closure.

The wicket by this time showed signs of being helpful to bowlers and so it proved. Batting a second time Kent could do little against the wiles of Verity who was very unlucky in just missing the distinction of capturing ten wickets in an innings. He took nine at a cost of 59 runs and Kent were dismissed for 183.

Yorkshire, faced with fourth knock on a worn wicket were even more at sea than the Kent batsmen, and could do nothing against Freeman's deliveries. He took 6 for 51 and Yorkshire were sent back for 88.

FOUR DOUBLE CENTURIES.

In a match seriously restricted by rain, Notts beat Lancashire on first innings. Against Voce, the now famous Test bowler, Lancashire were well nigh helpless and in view of his 8 for 55 they did well to score 230. Before stumps were finally drawn Notts succeeded in scoring 231 having lost three wickets. Keeton batted cleverly and remained unbeaten with 136 to his credit.

Doubles centuries were the order of the day. Walter Hammond, who has made quite a fetish of them this summer helped himself to another against the West Indies making it his fourth of the season. He has now eleven three figure knocks to his credit including a triple century and the four doubles.

Philip Mead of Hampshire followed suit by hitting up 227 against Derbyshire and Cook, the Sussex batsman put 214 against the Worcester bowlers. Leyland was the fourth to register the double century.

In addition there were eight centuries recorded, whilst seven batsmen came within 13 or less of the coveted three figures. Altogether 19 batsmen scored 2,466 runs between them, an average of 129 runs per batsman.

CLEVER WIN.

Sussex forced a clever win against Worcester. Declaring at 408 for 9 Sussex placed themselves in a position which prevented them from losing. Worcester held their own fairly well in the first innings, replying with 318, but in the follow-on, James Langridge and Maurice Tate proved deadly with the ball and bowling practically unchanged dismissed the disappointed Pottersmen for a meagre 77. Surrey and Essex scored 140 and 112 respectively.

R.E.S. Wyatt (115) and W. Voce (8 for 55) who figured prominently in the latest county cricket.

LUZ ENTERS THE SEMI-FINAL

BEATS H. NISH

Raoul Luz of the Club Recreio avenged his defeat by Hughie Nish last year, by eliminating the Kowloon Bowling Green player from the quarter final of the open singles on the Craigcower C.C. green yesterday by 22 shots to six.

Except for the first five heads Nish was completely out-pointed during the game, which ended on the 16th head. Luz opened with a two and a one, but conceded a two and then two singles. Thereafter he took control of the match and scored on the next seven heads, to give him 18 shots against his opponent's four. He eventually ran out winner by 22 shots to six.

Luz was playing by far a superior game and fully deserved his victory. His accuracy brought forth rounds of applause from the large crowd of spectators who were assembled round the green.

A BIG ENTRY LIST

PROGRAMME OF 15 EVENTS

The newly formed Hongkong International Amateur Swimming Association will hold their first annual aquatic championships next week, and during the coming week-end heats for the various events will be held at the Y.M.C.A. bath.

Altogether 151 entries have been received for the fifteen championship events, and they include a fair proportion of the best swimmers in the Colony. Unfortunately the differences between the Association and the V.R.C. have deprived this year's championship events of half the usual attraction.

Neither the Association's championships nor the V.R.C. championships, which are to be held later in the season, can be described as Colony championships.

The full list of entries for the Association championships is appended:

LEAGUE TENNIS

I.R.C. WIN LAST B DIV. MATCH

K.C.C. SUCCESSFUL

In bringing their programme to a finish against the Civil Service in the "B" Division yesterday the Indian Recreation Club can consider themselves somewhat lucky to have won.

The "Servants" had to concede three sets owing to the non-appearance of one of their pairs, and in the six sets played, the Indians won only 2½.

J. J. Barrow and D. M. McDougall again proved their value by winning 2½ sets.

The Kowloon Cricket Club scored their fourth win of the season when they beat the pointless University by 6½ to 2½.

The K.C.C. were by no means at full strength, but always had the match well in hand.

G. C. Burnett and George Lee (playing his first league match of the season) were in good form winning all three sets.

I.R.C. v. C.S.C.C.

J. S. A. Currie and M. el Arcull (I.R.C.) lost to J. Barrow and D. M. McDougall, 2-0, beat J. Bickford and H. Fowler, 6-4.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

British International's latest farce, "My Wife's Family" will open tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre. It is an adaptation of the play of the same name by an American author and the fact that it was originally performed in Chicago where it had a record run, survived by the entire cast, speaks well for its popularity. Re-adjusted for screen purposes, the story is concerned with a Mother-in-law.

The director of the film, Monty Banks, experienced tremendous difficulty in finding a typical mother-in-law. Leading character actresses of the angular, vinegar variety and stout aggressive types underwent exhaustive tests before Amy Veness was given the part.

The action in the picture takes place in and around a country house and a beautiful garden which boasts ornamental water, rose-arbours, crazy pavings, box hedges and shady trees in the background, for the exterior scenes.

Gene Gerrard stars in "My Wife's Family" supported by Muriel Angelus, Jimmy Godden, Amy Veness, Charles Paton and Dodo Watts.

"Born Lucky"

The story of Cinderella up-to-date! Such is an apt description of "Born Lucky", the Westminster Films Production, is now showing at the King's Theatre. The story, taken from the novel "Mopsa" by Oliver Sandys, traces the rise of an obscure little music-hall singer to fame and fortune on the West End stage. Talbot O'Farrell, the world-famous singer of Irish songs, makes his film debut in the leading role as the kindly old singer who befriends the heroine, played with great verve and charm by Rene Ray. John Longden, famous British screen star, who appeared in the first all-British talkie plays the hero, while other members of the cast are Ben Welden, Helen Ferriss, Barbara Gott, Glen Pointing and Roland Gillette.

The picture, which was produced by Jerry Jackson and directed by Michael Powell, is also notable for its music. Talbot O'Farrell, in his own inimitable style, sings one of his typical songs, while Rene Ray sings the fascinating "Oh Mister Moon", specially written and composed for the film by George and Holt Marvel. The dialogue is in the extremely capable hands of Jefferson Farnson, the noted author of "No. 17", "The House Opposite" and other thrillers.

"To-day We Live"

The first joint appearance in a talking film of Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper is now showing at the Queen's in "To-day We Live" is a happy event for moviegoers. For here is a picture which combines romance of a stirring story with a clean-cut, forceful story of the war with the emphasis laid on the part played by the commanders of the dangerous British two-man torpedo boats, known as the "skateo-fleet".

Miss Crawford, who seems to grow more exciting in appearance with each succeeding vehicle, has a striking role as the aristocratic English girl who cannot stand remaining at home while her brother and the two men who love her are at the front. Franchot Tone, the brother, and Robert Young, the childhood sweetheart, are members of the torpedo squad while Gary Cooper, who is closest to her heart enrolls in the flying forces. In order to be near these three, Miss Crawford becomes a member of a British ambulance unit.

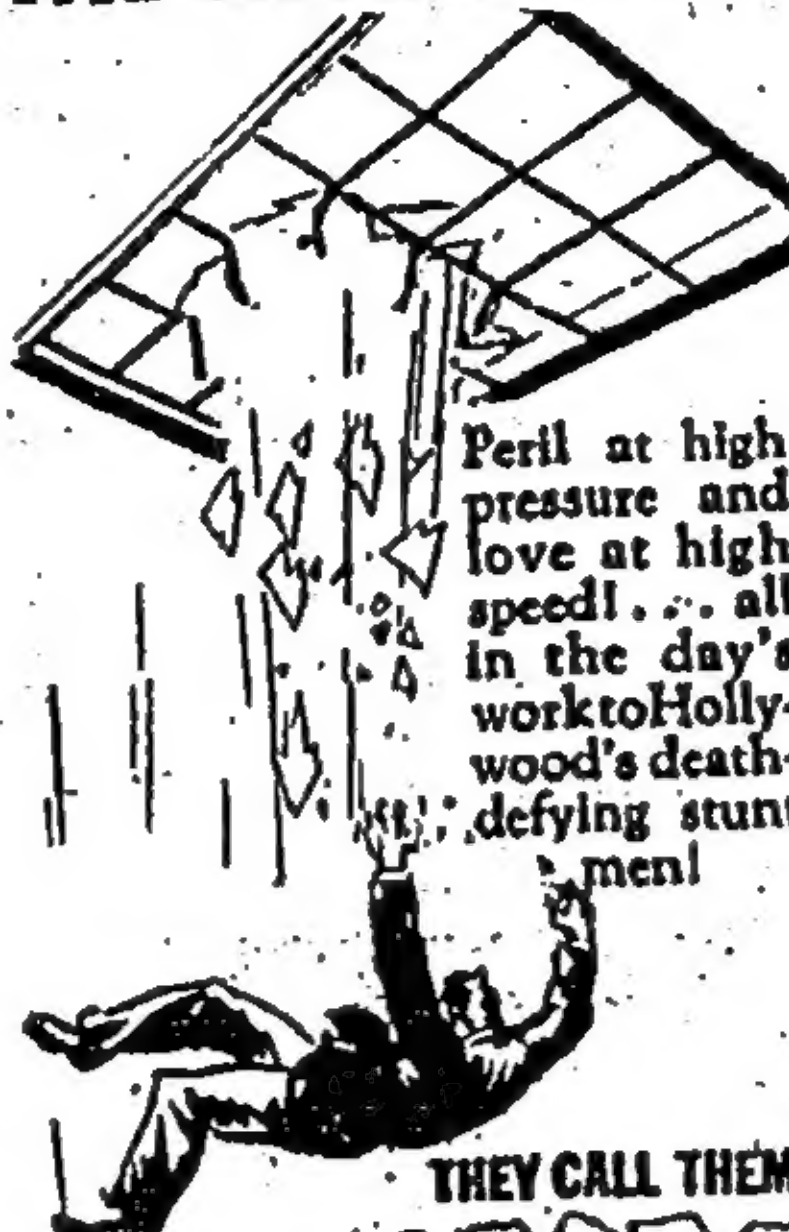

It is when Cooper is reported killed that the hysteria of the war forces Miss Crawford to give herself to the man who has loved her from childhood. Cooper's unexpected return precipitates a stirring dramatic climax. The picture is brought to a smashing close when two men give up their lives in the sinking of a ship in order to save Cooper for the girl whom they all love.

"Baroud"

"I wonder if it is realised," asks Rex Ingram, producer of the spectacular Ident talkie film, "Baroud", which comes to the King's Theatre next Sunday, "that slavery still exists in Morocco, but that the slaves invariably desire to remain in bondage. Their liberty could be theirs, if they wished, simply by applying to the Bureau des Affaires Indigenes. But no one ever applied. Mabrouka, for instance, my heroine's nurse in 'Baroud' ('Baroud' means tribal war-and watching the storm as the train sped through the countryside.

This was Eve's wedding night and she was alone, headed for New York on business for Bixby's store. What a situation! How had she found strength to tear herself away? How could she leave Dick like that without hurting him dreadfully, she asked herself. And who was that man with the two girls? Could they have made up a foursome for an impromptu party? Could Dick be blamed if he joined them?

Suppose he should never forgive her? Suppose she never saw Dick again? Suppose something terrible happened to punish her for leaving him this way?

Eve slipped down under the covers and pulled the sheet close so that only her face peeped out for air. So had she done when she was a little girl and became frightened in the night at imaginary figures and sounds. And so she prayed as she had prayed when she was a little girl—her very own prayer addressed to a Divinity as real, as friendly, as familiar almost as her own parents. "Oh, God, please have Dick forgive me; and help me to be good to him!"

Would there be a telegram in the morning?

fare) may be regarded as a slave that bosses the boss.

"Mabrouka, who is drawn from life, may afford the public a new angle on what slavery really means. The prophet Mohammed commanded: 'Feed and clothe your slaves as you feed and clothe yourselves—before God you are responsible for them.' And I will say that the happiest people I have ever met are so-called slaves."

"Baroud" is a thrill-laden romance dealing with the age-old problems of East and West, and is set in the picturesque Atlas Mountains of North Africa. Film-lovers of every type should make a point of seeing this extraordinarily lovely production.

MR. PELHAM'S POST.

H.K. COMMERCIAL COUNSELLOR
IOR TRIBUTED IN SHANGHAI

The British Chamber of Commerce Journal of Shanghai states: "Mr. George Clinton Pelham, who has been attached to the office of H. M. Commercial Counsellor of Legation at Shanghai, has been appointed Commercial Secretary, Hongkong. The Journal extends to Mr. G. C. Pelham its wholehearted congratulations on his appointment as Commercial Secretary in Hongkong, at the same time much regrets his departure from Shanghai, where, during the last year in the office of H. M. Commercial Counsellor of Legation, he has not only made a host of friends in the commercial community, but has shown a thorough knowledge of the many difficult questions with which he has had to deal. It is no doubt plaudits to say that Shanghai's loss is Hongkong's gain, but it is undoubtedly true, Shanghai will have lost and Hongkong will have gained an officer of outstanding ability. The honour conferred upon him is more noteworthy as he is taking up a post which is usually reserved for more senior men. The Journal wishes him every success in his new sphere and can assure the commercial interests in Hongkong that they have in Mr. Pelham a man whose clear thinking will be a great asset and whose general disposition will make for him many friends."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

A question often asked regarding the constructive one over one system of bidding is, "Do weak third and fourth hand opening bids get you into any trouble?"

I would like to answer this by saying that seldom have I ever seen a good player using this system of bidding get himself into trouble when playing rubber bridge. However, occasionally, when playing duplicate bridge, a weak third or fourth hand opening bid may lose a few match points. However, I assure you that even here it will gain you many more points in a year's time than it will lose, when properly handled.

The following hand, which came up in a recent tournament, is an interesting example of this particular point. Generally, if one over one players sat North and South on this board they lost, while if they sat East and West they won.

The Bidding

Under all systems South, the dealer, will pass, as will West. One over one players who believe in weak third hand opening bids will open in the North with one heart. East will overcall with a spade. South will bid two hearts, West will bid two spades, North must pass.

Remember that while in this system you are given the right to make a weak third hand opening bid, you must never enter the bidding again unless you have a sound, legitimate bid.

East will pass and if South does venture to bid three hearts, West will go to three spades, which is exactly what East and West can make. Of course, if West elects to double three hearts, it can be beaten two tricks. So here we find that one over one players opening with a weak third hand will lose on this particular board.

However, supposing that a pair of one over one players are sitting East and West, and those believing in strong third hand bids are sitting North and South. In this case South, West and North will all pass.

Most one over one players will open fourth hand in the East position with one spade. If South passes, West can only bid two spades which East, of course, will pass. At no time will East and West, playing the constructive one over one system of bidding, arrive

POST FOR FENG

THREE POSITIONS OFFERED

Nanking, Aug. 22.

Mr. Liu Wei-chi, Vice-Minister of Industry, who was with Mr. Sun Fo when the latter visited General Feng Yu-hsiang, told pressmen here to-day that the Government had offered General Feng three positions, one of which he was asked to choose.

The positions were Commissioner of Forestation and Colonisation for the North-West; Inspector-General of the Army and Commissioner for the improvement of the Yellow River.

Sun Fo's Interview.

Mr. Sun Fo arrived this morning from Tientsin and stated that he interviewed General Feng Yu-hsiang in a private capacity.

He expressed his doubt in regard to the reported postponement of the Fifth National Kuomintang Congress, which he believed would be held as scheduled, in November.

New Appointment.

The Executive Yuan has appointed Mr. Tang Yu-jen to be Administrative Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs and has also instructed the Ministry of Railways to take charge of the construction of the highway linking Sinkiang with China proper, appropriating $50,000 for initial expenses.—Reuter.

at a four spade contract, even though East opens with a hand as weak as this.

One North and South pair, after North had opened the contracting with one heart, were able to hold the contract to two spades. South opened the five of hearts. Declarer must now guess whether North holds the ace or the queen of hearts. If declarer guessed wrong, playing the seven of hearts, North would win with the queen and then return a small heart, South winning with the ace.

TERRIBLE PLIGHT

ASSYRIANS MASSACRED BY IRAQUIS

Nicosia (Cyprus, Aug. 22). Marshimim, hereditary Patriarch of the Assyrians, who was deported from Iraq, has arrived here accompanied by his father and brother.

Interviewed, the Patriarch declared that the plight of the Assyrians was desperate in the extreme. They were scattered and homeless and exposed to attack from marauders, Kurds and Iraqis.

The Patriarch maintained that 325 women, children and old men had been massacred at Semel and over 500 at other places.

The Iraqi army, he said, was responsible for the massacres, at which the Government connived.

Marshimim left Baghdad on condition that he be allowed to place his cause before the League of Nations.—Reuter.

LUANTUNG RULE

RETROCESSION ALMOST COMPLETE NOW

Peking, Aug. 22. Mr. Ho Ying-ching, interviewed this afternoon, stated that with the exception of Hainlung and Tushan, which districts extend beyond the Great Wall, the work of taking over the administration of the various sections of Luantung and the area north of Peking might be considered complete.

Negotiations would go forward for the taking over of Hainlung and Tushan, he added.

Concerning Shanhaikuan, he said the area between Tashih and the Great Wall was not yet completely taken over due to the fact that various organisations established by the Manchukuo authorities had not yet been withdrawn from Shanhaikuan city.—Reuter.

POSSIBLE ERRORS IN DIAGNOSIS

Austrian Method in Blood Tests

In certain disorders the finding of living bacteria in the blood of the sufferers is an important part of diagnosis, and for many years attempts have been made to detect the tuberculosis organisms in this way.

No constant and striking success was obtained until in recent years Professor E. Lowenstein and his colleagues in Vienna discovered a new method of procedure, and since the publication of their results there has been a pilgrimage of pathologists to the scene of the search in order to obtain first-hand experience of the technique. It was soon apparent, however, that although successful in Vienna the method failed completely in almost every other laboratory in the world.

Since Professor Lowenstein had started the medical profession by finding tuberculosis organisms not only in tuberculous patients, but also in sufferers from rheumatoid arthritis and certain disorders of the nervous system, this discrepancy in the results obtained by different experts made it essential that the whole matter should be examined critically before possible fallacies had led to serious error.

RARE INSTANCES. It is concluded that although in certain types of tuberculosis, especially in severe generalised disease, the bacilli may be present in the blood in sufficient numbers to be detected, this is comparatively rare, and there are many possible sources of error in the bacteriological methods advocated in recent years.

The use of old microscope slides, contaminated materials (harmless bacilli similar in appearance may even occur in tap water), and

JAPAN'S HOPES

ANTICIPATE CHANGE IN CHINA POLICY

Tokyo, Aug. 22. Japanese circles profess to see signs of a big change in China's policy towards Japan in connexion with the reported resignation of Lo Wen-kap and the concurrent assumption by Wang Ching-wei of the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, T. V. Soong's anticipated visit to Tokyo, the return of Chiang Tso-pin to his post here and the recent interview between Huang Fu and the Japanese diplomat, Mr. Ariyoshi.

On the other hand it is also prophesied that Japan's policy towards China will undergo radical review, with visits to Chinese leaders being planned by former Ambassador Hirota, whose post was in Moscow, and Mr. Sugimura, Minister Plenipotentiary without portfolio.

It is emphasised in official circles, however, that there will be no change in Japan's policy towards China, which consists of "watchful waiting," though "Japan is sincerely desirous that China will soon realise the folly of anti-Japanese agitation and move in the direction of resuming a friendly relationship with her neighbour."—Reuter.

especially the assumption that the growth of organisms on special culture medium necessarily means that these are tubercle bacilli, are all fallacies which appear in the published results of certain workers.

The report contains in an appendix a detailed statement of all the precautions necessary in practice for the unequivocal demonstration of the tubercle bacillus in infected material. The high standards there set out are a good example of the quality of work in bacteriology in this country.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

NEW AUTUMN STYLES

By Joan Savoy

Looking cool and collected is a quality above price. It is the equivalent of appealing charm, as a matter of fact.

The dark background dresses with light touches, stand up better under wear and tear much better than the light ones.

For the business woman who must look her best to hold her job, a navy blue ensemble—dress and jacket—coat—is an ideal outfit. The dress fits beautifully, has a novelty belt and short sleeves.

The swaggar coat slips its full sleeves up almost to the elbow and hangs open. There is a blue and white polka dotted chiffon tie and big bow that trims the suit and looks fresh much longer than a white one would.

There is also a star-dotted suit that sponsors a new version of the popular red, white and blue motif. The background of the sheer fabric is blue, the generously sprinkled stars are white and their centres are red.

This dress has a collar and neck-bow of white organdie which is detachable for laundering. The jacket is a hip-length swaggar, with short sleeves which have slits that show your arm through.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart.

A clear, flawless complexion is one of the first steps toward real charm. You must rid your skin of all blemishes such as black-heads and pimples if you would attain true beauty.

The nose and the crease in the chin are the first two places where blackheads appear. If you already have them, do something immediately to get rid of them. There are a few simple steps which, if followed closely, will do the trick.

Lather your face with soap and warm water each night before you go to bed. Use a rough wash cloth if you wish, but many skin specialists advocate the palms of the hands as agents for lathering the face. When every particle of dust is gone, rinse the skin thoroughly.

Now apply hot towels. Dip a bath towel into a bowl of very hot water, wring it out and cover your face with it. Do this two or three times.

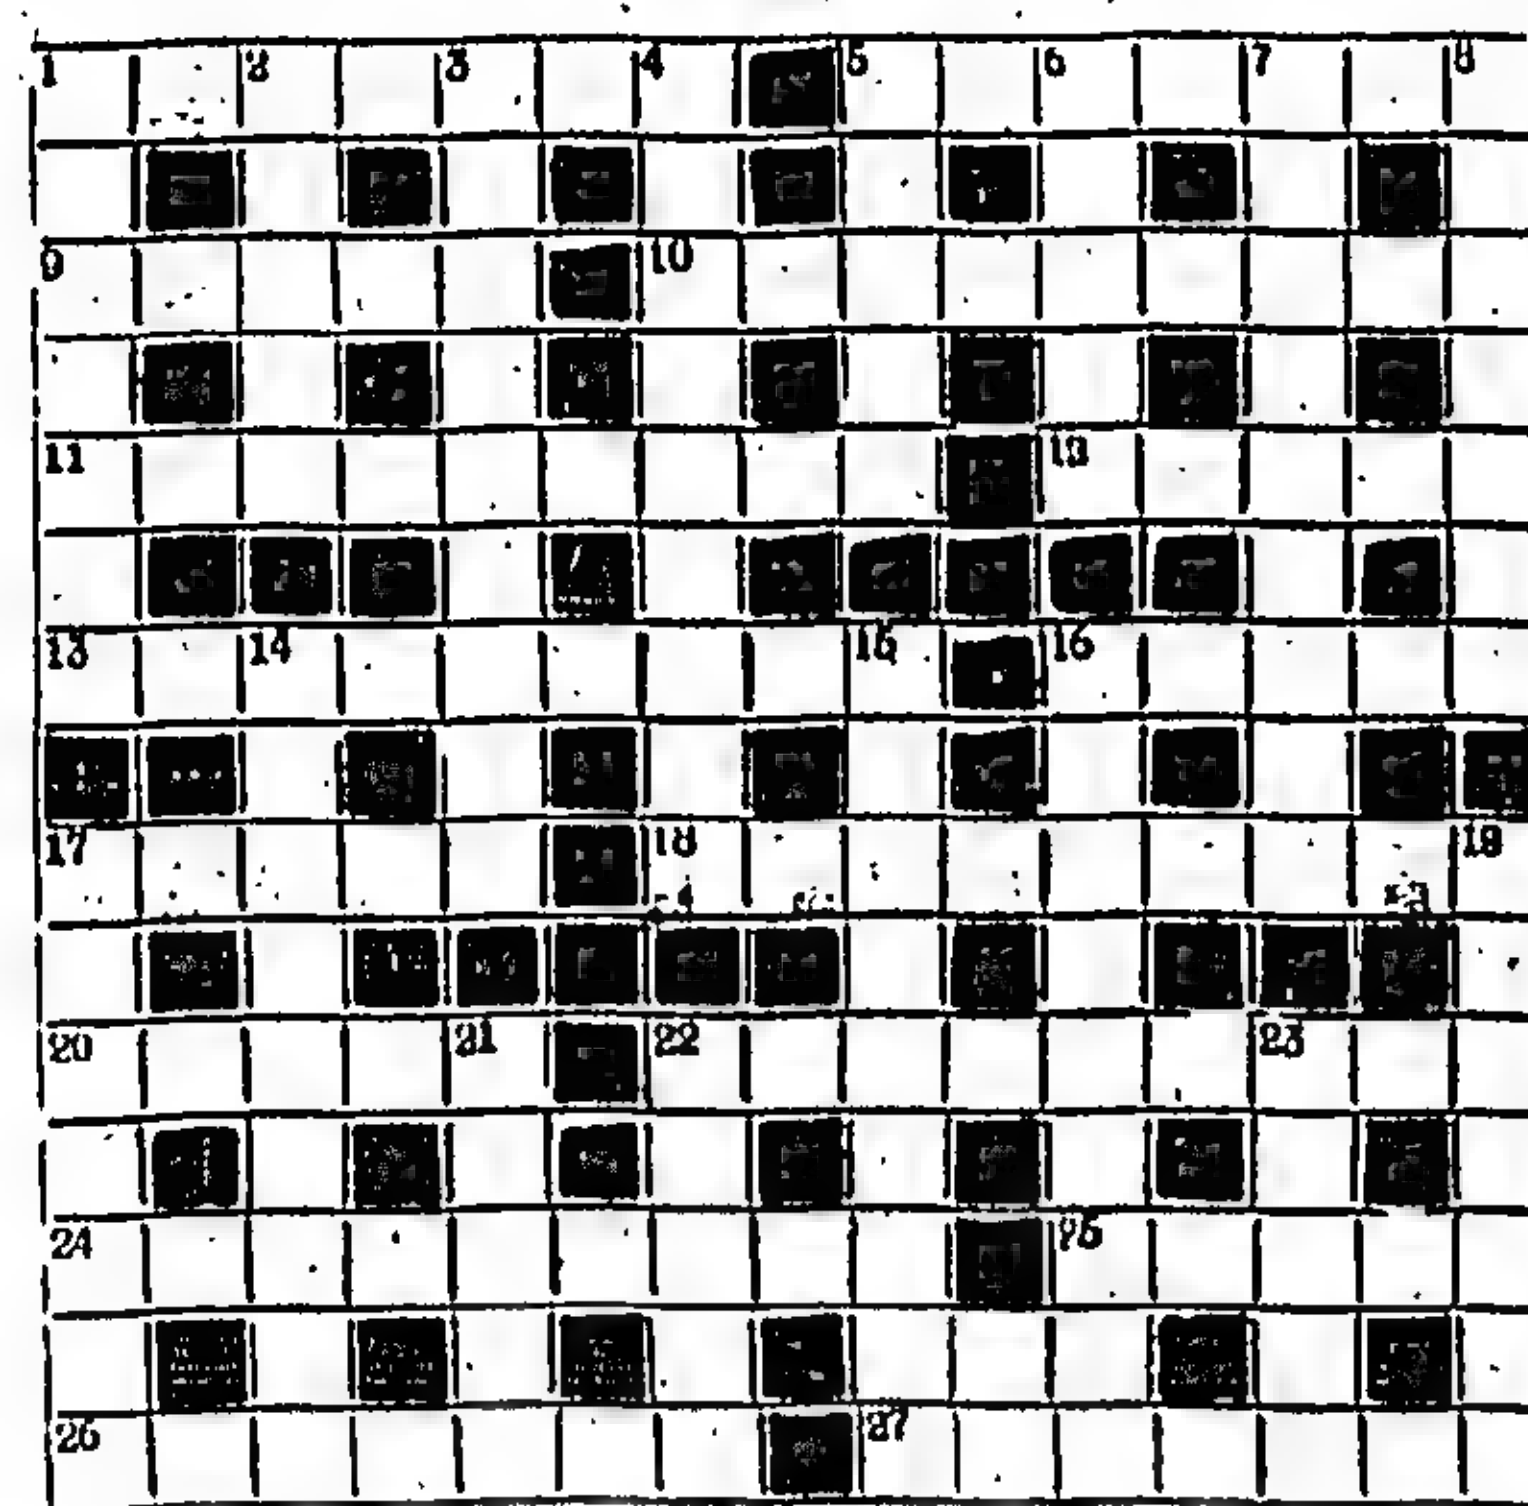

When your skin has been steamed, cover your forefingers with pieces of clean gauze and gently press out all the blackheads which come out easily. Don't pinch your skin hard enough to break or injure the delicate tissues. You can't expect to get each blemish the first night so take plenty of time. When you have finished squeezing, apply disinfectant.

Rinse your face with clear, ice cold water to close up the pores and then use an astringent to finish closing them. This last step is very important—there is no use opening the pores and then leaving them that way to catch more dust particles.

If your skin feels dry use a little tissue cream before you go to sleep.

Saving Money For Father

"Father," said little Egbert slyly, "wouldn't you be glad if I saved you five shillings?"

"Certainly, I should be delighted, my son."

"Well, I've saved it for you already," said Egbert, edging towards the door. "You said if I brought a good report from school you'd give me five shillings. . . . but I didn't."

There are most certainly better ways than this in which the little ones can save money for their parents. If children can keep their expenses of bringing up a family can be much reduced. A means by which many parents prevent childhood ailments is by using Baby's Own Tablets. Given at the first sign of "off-colour" more serious developments can be arrested, and pains, worry and doctor's bills avoided. Baby's Own Tablets are a remedy specially designed for babies and young children up to about seven. The tablets have a gentle, natural laxative and stomach-cleansing action. They are rapidly and pleasantly constipation and stomach troubles, flatulence, cramp, convulsions, loss of appetite, feverishness, colds, diarrhoea, worms, whilst during teething they ease pain in a remarkably speedy fashion. Guaranteed pure, free from opiates and narcotics, Baby's Own Tablets will satisfy the most exacting parent or most cautious doctor. Obtainable from chemists everywhere.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

EVE BAYLESS, pretty copy writer in the advertising office of Bixby's department store, secretly marries DICK RADER, a construction engineer. The marriage takes place hurriedly during a noon lunch hour. Dick wants Eve to give up working but she refuses. Eve is ambitious and knows she is being considered for the job of assistant to EARLE DAINES, advertising manager at Bixby's.

Later that same day Eve learns that she is to receive the promotion. The first of her new duties is to make a trip to New York to meet FREDERICK CARTER, the dress buyer. It is necessary for Eve to leave Lake City that night.

She rushes home to pack a travelling bag. At five o'clock Dick meets her and they drive to an attractive restaurant for dinner. Eve faces the difficult task of telling him that she must leave on an eight o'clock train.

CHAPTER II

Dick looked puzzled. "Leave me?" he repeated. "I don't understand. What in the world are you trying to tell me, sweet-heart?"

"Well—" Eve hesitated. "You know I told you that Alice Marshall is leaving Bixby's to open an office of her own and that I might have a chance to take her place? And you know how hard I've worked for a promotion?"

"Yes, Well?" Dick's voice didn't seem quite natural. It sounded a trifle grim. His gray eyes were sober, waiting.

"Well, Alice is going very soon. Sooner than Mr. Barnes expected. He called me into his office early this morning and told me I had a chance for the position. He said he and Mr. Bixby would decide about it this afternoon. And," Eve nervously took a sip of hot coffee, "he said this morning that if they decided I could have the job I was to leave for New York to-night. I was afraid to tell them this is our wedding day. I never would have got the promotion then."

Dick, white-faced, waited. She looked at him pleadingly but he did not help her. She must hurry on. Time pressed.

"Well, darling, I hoped against hope. I wanted the position and I wanted you. And as long as we had planned to be married this noon I couldn't bear to spoil our wedding. And I didn't know for sure until the middle of the afternoon that the job is mine and that I'm to leave to-night for New York."

Through misty tears Eve saw Dick's firm, generous mouth, now a thin, straight streak across his white face. He asked, "For—how long?"

And she answered, "A week—nearly. I'll be home Sunday morning."

Dick raised the ruby goblet to his lips. The harpist changed her melody to Victor Herbert's "Gypsy Sweetheart." Ever afterward at the sound of that air Eve was to relive that scene.

Dick was waiting for her to go on.

Eve said, "Can't you come along with me, darling?"

"Then you have decided to go?" Dick wasn't making it easy for her.

"I must, Dick! It's my big opportunity." This a trifle defiantly.

Then, regretting her manner a bit, she added, "If you'd come along, Dick, we could announce our marriage immediately. Come on, darling! We'll spend our honeymoon in New York. All I have to do there is look about—visit the smart shops and restaurants and the theatres. It will be fun!"

But Dick had his work too and slowly he shook his head. "No, it's impossible for me to get away before the job is finished in June. Just now we're pouring concrete and if there is a slip-up I'm responsible. People have been forced to dynamite whole foundation walls because they were laid out a few inches out of line. No, Eve. When a bunch of blueprints are handed to me I don't leave until the completed building is turned over to the owner and I know what he will find out later—that everything is o. k. I'm staying on the job."

Eve's lips quivered. He was willing for her to go. He didn't even quarrel over it as, unreasonably, she half hoped he would do. Was it possible that she did not mean as much to him as his work? Well, then, she would just show him! She delivered the next blow:

"My train leaves at eight o'clock," Eve announced. "I rushed out late this afternoon and packed a bag and sent it to the station."

"WHAT!" he cried. Hastily he paid the check and bundled Eve into her wraps. Then, telling her to wait inside until he brought the car, he dashed into the storm. In a few moments he was back and hurrying her under the canopy to the chugging roadster. They could see the lights of the Terminal Tower as they sped over the heights to the city. Dick's profile was rigid. He kept his eyes on the slippery street.

Eve could not endure it. "Dick!" Her voice was high-pitched, imploring.

He brought the car to a stop beside the cobblestone garden wall of some millionaire's estate.

"Oh, Dick!" she sobbed and flung herself into his arms.

He said soothingly, "There, there, sweetheart, don't cry. You'll miss your train. We have only 20 minutes. It's a bad night for driving and I'll have to step on it to make that train." Dick released her and started the motor. He had not kissed her.

"Richard Rader. If you don't kiss me this minute I'll NEVER go to New York," she told him through her tears.

And Dick kissed his wife, stepped on the accelerator and reached the station just a few minutes before eight o'clock.

"Where will you stop?" he asked as he saw Eve safely aboard the train. "Have you wired for a reservation?"

Eve named her hotel. "Bixby's made the reservation for me. And Freda Carter will be there the first two days." Eve smiled. She knew why he asked—flowers, telegrams, letters.

"But you'll be there alone the rest of the time? I don't like it, Eve. It isn't safe."

"Oh, darling, don't be quaint. Of course I'll be safe! I'll look up Irene Prentiss. Will she do for a chaperon?"

She kissed Dick goodbye and told him she would miss him.

He alighted and stood outside looking up at her through the car window. Tears dimmed her eyes, and there was a hurt, puzzled look in Dick's face—a little-boy look. A pain that was fiercely maternal twisted Eve's heart.

Of course Dick would go to a telegraph office immediately and send her a telegram to be waiting for her at the hotel in New York in the morning. Eve could almost guess the words he would use.

"Missing you, darling. Hurry back. Love from Dick."

A gay group including a young man and two girls brushed past Dick. Then the man turned in sudden recognition and the girls, clinging to his arm, swung about with him. Apparently they were being introduced, although Eve could hear no part of the conversation through the double windows. Then, with a warning and a jerk, the long train glided out of the station.

Dick was lost to Eve and her last glimpse of him included a pair of laughing girls and an irresponsible-looking young man. Suddenly Eve wanted to leap from the moving train to be with Dick.

"It's not only your wedding night, Eve Bayless," she told herself, "but it's also your first business trip to New York—and you know the importance of that."

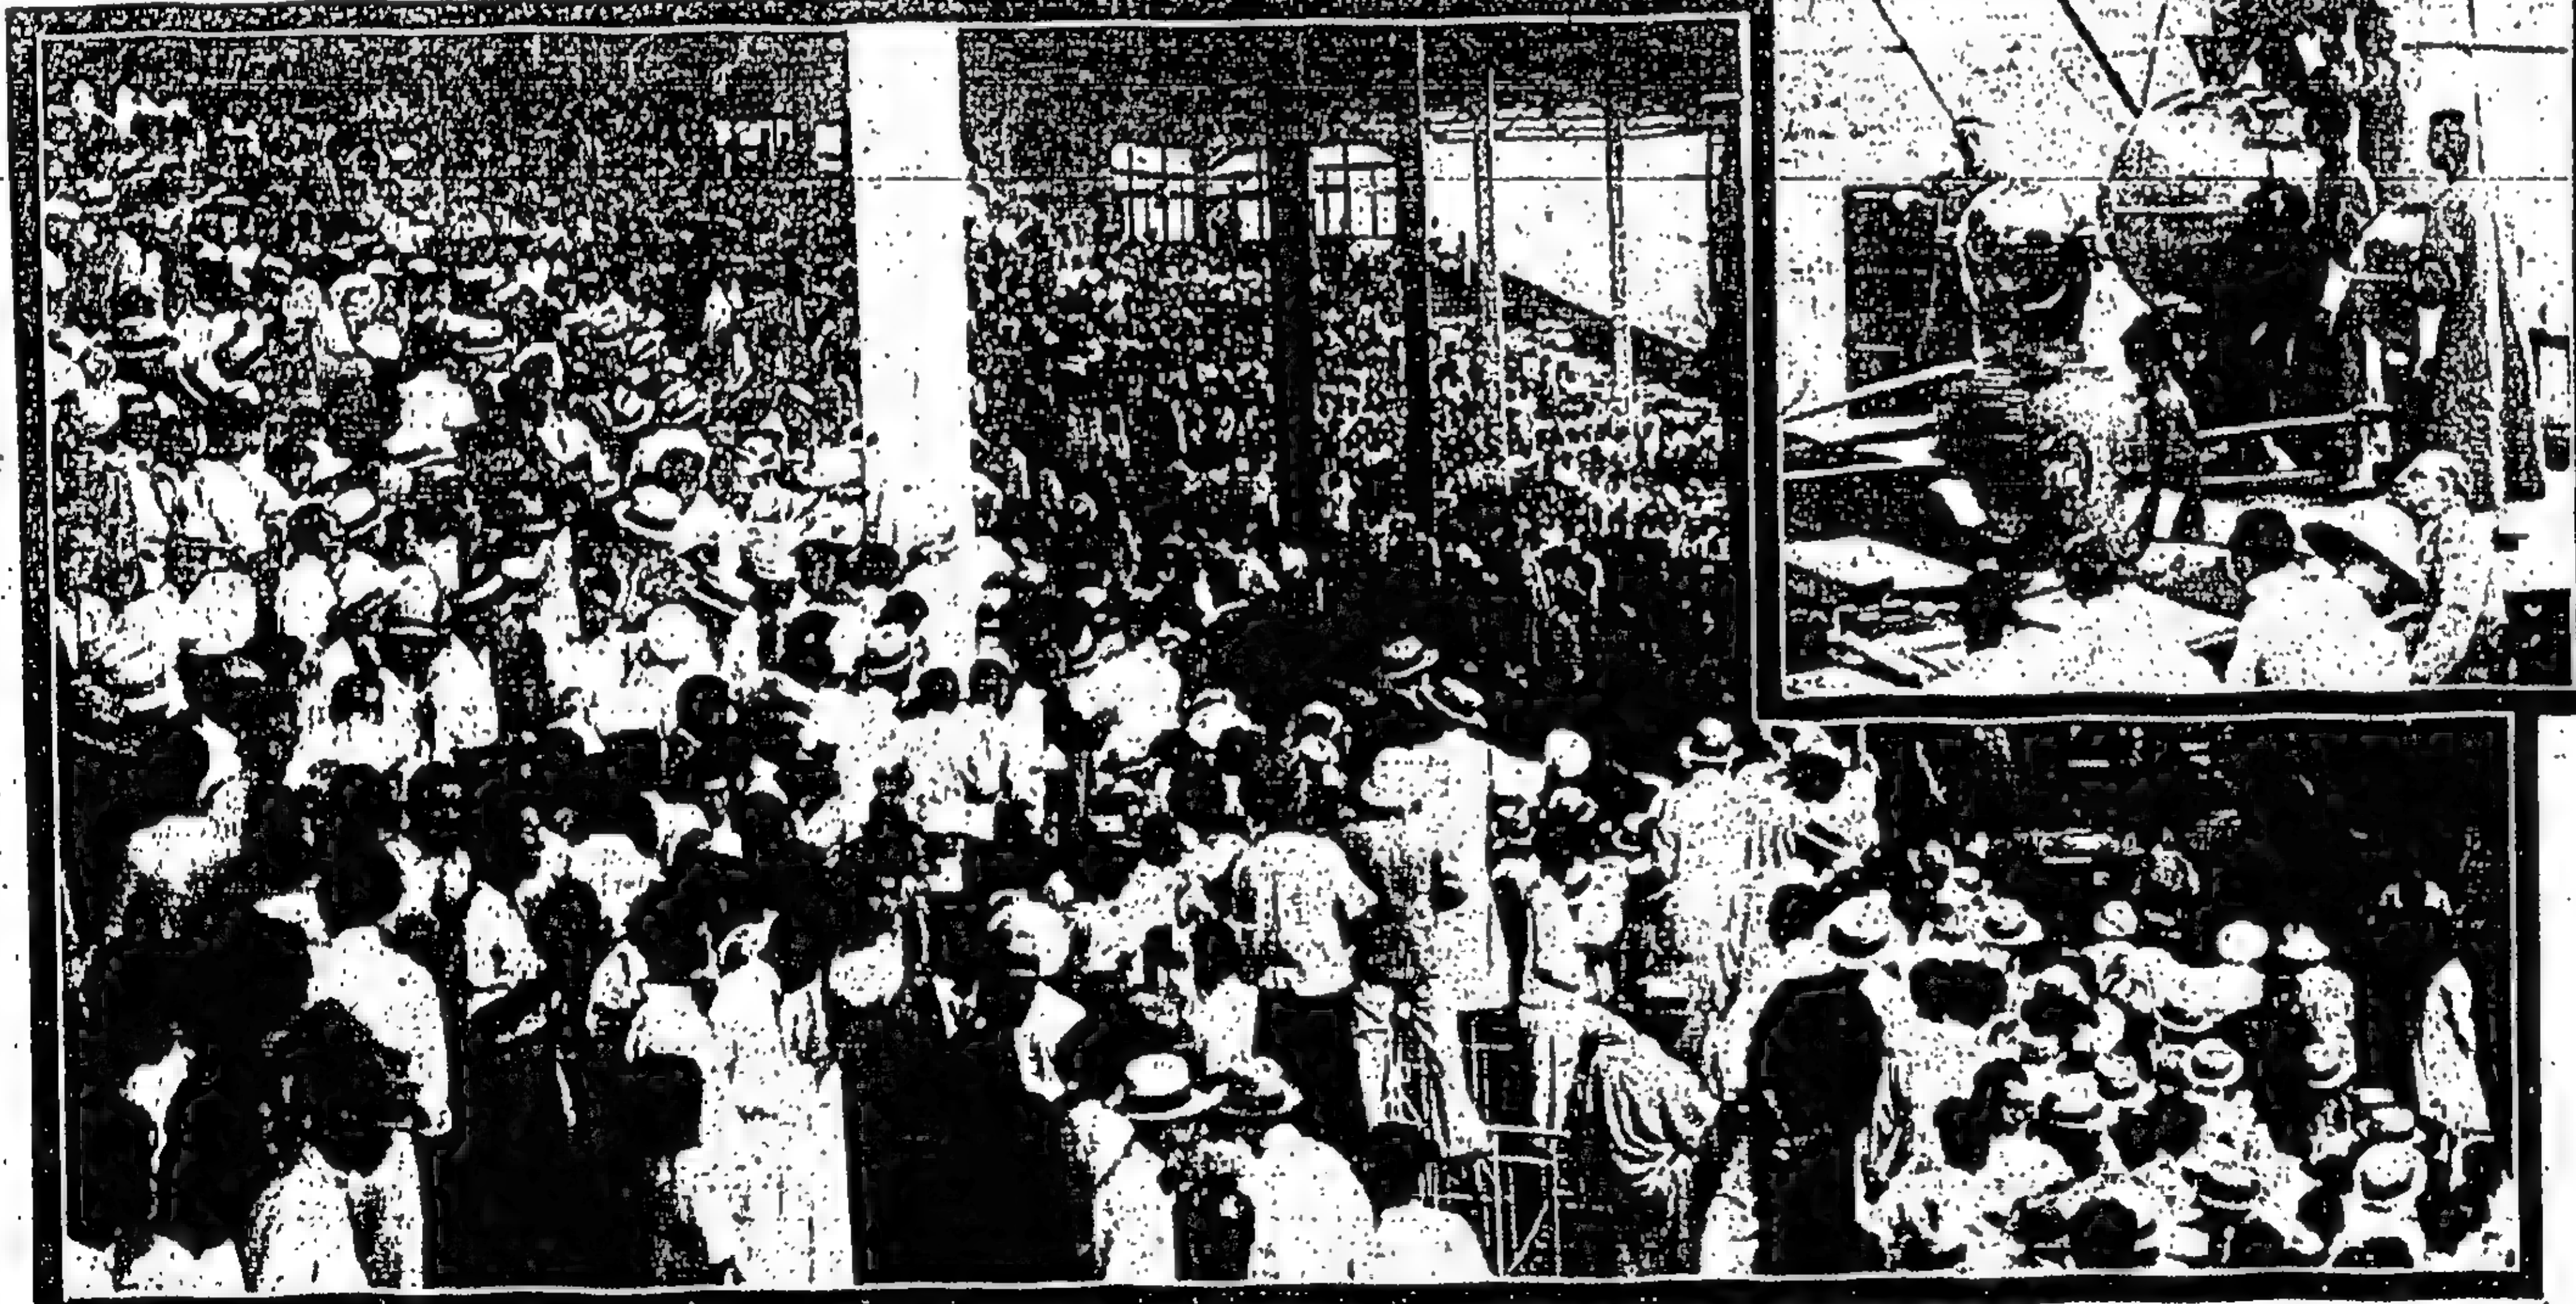

As the train gathered momentum and plunged into the night Eve tried to read the evening paper but was unable to fasten her attention on anything but the department store advertisements, which were merely force of habit.

She rang for the porter and asked to have her berth made up early. Later she lay on her side for a long time, resting her head on her arm

At an impressive ceremony in Chapel, the Memorial Hall to Chinese killed during the Sino-Japanese hostilities of last year was opened in the presence of a large number of Chinese officials and members of the public. A tablet on which was inscribed the names of Chinese officers killed during the hostilities was unveiled. Photo shows General Tai Chi performing the unveiling ceremony.

An intense passion for taking a chance is an outstanding characteristic of the Chinese race. This was demonstrated when Chinese formed almost the whole of a crowd of some 10,000 that thronged the Candrome grandstand to see the drawing of the first National State Lottery, which lasted from 1.30 p.m. to 8.15 p.m. The excellent picture above shows a portion of the great gathering and indicates clearly the anxiety and close attention with which the watchers followed the draw, many jotting down the numbers as they were announced. The picture inset shows the three drums from which the numbers were drawn—those of the tickets from the large one in the centre and that on the left, and of the prizes from that on the right. The small engraved teak balls are seen being poured into the middle drum. From beneath the drums run narrow brass channels down which the released balls rolled to the announcers. The ticket that won the first prize—299287—came down after two unsold tickets had been drawn.

MALAYAN CHAMPIONSHIP WON and British Record Broken

CHAMPION

Ooi Leong Teik writes:

"It is with the greatest pleasure that I write to testify to the benefits I have received by taking Phosferine during my training for the 1931 Malayan Weight-Lifting Championships.

As I had to reduce some seven or eight pounds off my normal bodyweight in order to enable me to compete in the 9-stone class, I had to go into very strenuous training, and with the help of Phosferine, I not only won the championship of that class, but also the Individual Championship, and, in addition, I broke a British Record.

I therefore have no hesitation in recommending Phosferine to any physical culturist or athlete, whether he be in ordinary training or preparing for a competition, as it

GIVES ENERGY and ENDURANCE and RENEWS BROKEN-DOWN TISSUE."

JAPAN'S HOPES

ANTICIPATE CHANGE IN CHINA POLICY.

Tokyo, Aug. 22. Japanese circles profess to see signs of a big change in China's policy towards Japan in connexion with the reported resignation of Lo Wen-kan and the concurrent assumption by Wang Ching-wei of the portfolio of Foreign Affairs. T. V. Soong's anticipated visit to Tokyo, the return of Chiang Tso-pin to his post here and the recent interview between Huang Fu and the Japanese diplomat, Mr. Ariyoshi.

On the other hand it is also prophesied that Japan's policy towards China will undergo radical review, with visits to Chinese leaders being planned by former Ambassador Hirota, whose post was in Moscow, and Mr. Sugimura, Minister Plenipotentiary without portfolio.

It is emphasised in official circles, however, that there will be no change in Japan's policy towards China, which consists of "watchful waiting," though "Japan is sincerely desirous that China will soon realise the folly of anti-Japanese agitation and move in the direction of resuming a friendly relationship with her neighbour."—Reuter.

COFFIN BEARER'S TALE

WITNESS SAYS CLERK COACHED HIM TO LIE

An alleged attempt to swindle the Tung Wah Hospital authorities in connexion with the exhumation of human remains from the Tin Sin Kong cemetery, between April and August this year, was outlined by Mr. M. K. Lo, appearing for the prosecution, in a case against five Chinese, heard by Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon.

The defendants, Chan Kau, mortuary attendant, Wong Kwai-chi, contractor, Hui Cheung, labourer, Siu Chan, labourer, and Cheng Tuk, coffin bearer, were charged with conspiracy to defraud the Tung Wah Hospital authorities of money, by claiming to have exhumed 23,194 sets of human remains whereas they had only exhumed 11,446.

Mr. F. X. D'Almada, senior, appeared for the second, third and fourth defendants, while Mr. C. Y. Kwan represented the fifth defendant. The contractor appeared on bail.

Mr. Lo said the case arose out of building operations at Tin Sin Kong, Pokfulam, the new site of the Government Civil Hospital. The site was apparently an old cemetery and in each urn there were human remains. In accordance with usual custom, the Government, through the Hon. Secretary for Chinese Affairs, instructed the Tung Wah Hospital to remove the bones. Every year the Tung Wah Hospital let out tenders to various undertakers, and the tender this year was given to a syndicate consisting of three undertakers.

All work was supervised by a Tung Wah representative. The idea of supervision was to see that the bones were dug up and that the reburial took place with due decorum, and secondly, to check the contractor's count of the number of reburials.

Before the work is commenced, the S.C.A. is notified and the S.C.A. sends a representative to the site. What the Tung Wah paid for the removal they were reimbursed by the Government. Therefore, on the site there would be the contractor, the Tung Wah representative, the S.C.A. representative and occasionally a P.W.D. official.

Watchman Present.

In this case, the work was actually commenced on April 11 this year, and evidence would be given that the first defendant was the Tung Wah's representative and the Tung Wah's representative was the contractor, together with 12 coolies. District Watchman 25 was there throughout as representative of the S.C.A.

Mr. Schofield: He is not one of the defendants is he?

Mr. Lo: No, your Worship, he is not. Continuing, Mr. Lo said this syndicate of undertakers actually sub-contracted the work to another syndicate, headed by the second defendant, and it would be the prosecution's case that the third defendant was also a partner. Evidence would be given to the Court as to who were the actual contractors and by whom they were paid. Apart from the third defendant, all the other partners were no longer in the Colony and it was the prosecution's suggestion that they had all left.

Between July 5 and 10 the first defendant reported that the work had been completed and that the total number of sets reburied was 23,194, which was the number stated in the charge, plus 17 dug out by builders by accident.

The first defendant signed the certificate to that effect and gave it to the hospital. Evidence would show that the whole of the digging out and reburial was completed by about June 17 or 18. The authorities received information on August 13 and the directors were communicated with.

The district watchman, who was the chief witness in the case, would depose to meetings with the first defendant at Apichau and the To To Sin restaurant, and his evidence was very important regarding guilty knowledge of the first and second defendants. The district watchman was, although he would not admit it, in the swindle up to the time he received certain information on June 16 on which he acted, and his subsequent attendance at meetings at the restaurant was under the direction and instructions of Inspector Elston.

Desecrated Ground.

After they were communicated with, the directors of the Tung Wah challenged the first defendant, and eventually a hospital clerk was sent to the cemetery at Apichau, to check up the number of burials. The evidence of the first and second defendants had tried to palm off a piece of ground which had been desecrated, to deceive the authorities as to the actual number of burials.

Mr. Lo said that if his Worship were satisfied that the number of burials which took place was not more than 11,000 and that the figures stated by the defendants was double that amount, and when his Worship was informed that the sub-contractor was paid 35 cents per set of bones, (the contractors were in turn paid by the Tung Wah authorities), for named urns and another price for unnamed urns, his Worship would see the enormous fraud on both the hospital authorities and the Government.

Charges Withdrawn.

The fourth and fifth defendants were actually finks of the second defendant, and apparently were not partners. Both of them gave statements to Inspector Elston, after they had been duly warned, and although it was possible in a charge of conspiracy for the prosecution to prove some kind of prima facie case against them, that in the light of their evidence, Mr. Lo had been instructed definitely by the prosecution, to ask his Worship for leave to withdraw against the fourth and fifth defendants, on the conditions that they be called to give evidence for the prosecution.

Their evidence would show that the fourth defendant had been directed by the first and second defendants to do nothing for a few days and then to break up a single set of bones into three. Such instructions were of a terrible and callous nature.

Mr. Lo asked to withdraw against the fourth and fifth defendants on the ground that they be called first to give testimony.

Mr. D'Almada said he would agree to withdrawal against his client but did not agree to his being called first.

Mr. Lo: We do feel very definitely that once they are discharged and let go, they will not be here to-morrow. It is a very important case and their evidence is important against the third defendant who, we say, was on the site all the time. The result of this case does not concern the Tung Wah Hospital or the S.C.A.

Whether your Worship finds these men guilty or discharges them is a matter of utter indifference to us, and I do say this with all sincerity. The Tung Wah Hospital would like to have the fullest investigation by your Worship.

Coffin Bearer's Story.

Mr. Kwan remarked he had no objection to his client being called first, to give evidence.

The fifth defendant was accordingly withdrawn from the dock and entered the witness box. He stated he was a coffin bearer, and between April 4 and June 6 last was engaged in work at Tin Sin Kong. Third defendant was a partner with the second defendant. Witness's duty was to dig up the urns containing the remains for removal to Apichau.

Witness then explained that bones were placed in sacks, and those containing bones from graves with headstones were labelled and those containing remains from graves without headstones were not. They were taken to a matshed and later removed to Apichau. Witness did not notice the number of sacks that went into the shed.

Mr. Lo: Did you notice whether a greater number of sacks were removed from the shed to Apichau than had been originally put in?

Witness: A little in excess. Several hundreds.

Replying further, witness said he took part in the reburial at Apichau, which was done in seven sections. The first defendant and the district watchman checked the numbers, but the second defendant took no check. Second defendant took the numbers as stated by the first defendant.

Strange Evidence.

Cross-examined by Mr. D'Almada, witness said he did see Mr. D'Almada's clerk (Mr. Wong) in prison a few days ago. Witness alleged that the clerk coached him to tell lies.

Mr. Lo commented on the cross-examination as "most remarkable".

Mr. D'Almada maintained that at the time he was instructed to defend him. He did not know of the subsequent change of solicitor.

Mr. Kwan: And I did not know myself that Mr. D'Almada was appearing for him.

Mr. Lo remarked the customary practice with local solicitors was for them to see prisoners in gaol or, if they could not go, they sent their clerk with a letter from them necessary for the interview.

Mr. D'Almada, after further discussion, said he would have something to say later about Inspector Elston taking down statements after warning the defendants, and not after charging. Witness, answering further questions, said they unearthed daily between 270 and 280 urns. They stopped work only during rainy weather. They ceased work at Tin Sin Kong on May 27 last when all the graves had been dug. After further evidence, the hearing was adjourned.

WHEAT AND WHAT?

The calling of a wheat conference in London this week has an interest altogether apart from its specific objectives. It serves to confirm the belief that the World Economic Conference is never likely to meet again in full session, that success in international cooperation in the economic field is only likely to be achieved by smaller gatherings dealing with special subjects. This is the lesson that was learned from the failure of original gathering to achieve any progress. Regardless of later events, the conference will be remembered for at least three important developments including clarification of American policy. Even Americans were amazed to discover that their Government was trying to go in one direction with its foreign policy while travelling rapidly in a contrary direction with domestic policy. The conference forced that discovery; some of the delegates had to go to London to make it. And although the ineptitudes and contradictions of Washington's conduct added to the irritation other nations felt at the sudden change in American policy, that policy was linked with a new and warming hope of recovery which somewhat thawed even a chilly gold bloc. Nations which had no real recovery programme of their own were glad to see a definite and upward-direction established by one powerful country. The London conference may come to be remembered as the occasion for the launching of a permanent stable money policy by a great nation. If carried to success, the purpose announced by President Roosevelt to give the dollar a steady value so that it will buy as much in the next generation as in this, would mark a veritable economic revolution. And for historians the economic conference probably will date an era of economic nationalism. It disclosed as perhaps nothing else could the limits to which economic internationalism is confined at the present stage of human thinking. It brought a recognition of the amazing extent to which national economic systems are politically organized so that trade is becoming more and more an exchange between governments instead of individuals. And it showed clearly that nations do not yet understand that it may be as profitable to buy as to sell. It further demonstrated that no nation is willing to sacrifice domestic trade for foreign. And with this it seems we must rest content until enlightenment comes to another generation.

NOTES OF THE DAY

AUSTRO-GERMAN TENSION

The Austro-German situation continues to engage the attention of all Europe and feeling against Germany seems to be hardening. That a grave view is taken in London of recent developments is strikingly revealed by the establishment of a new Consular post at Innsbruck. If an attempt is made, as threatened, to stage a Nazi coup d'etat, it will be managed, internally, from Innsbruck. Hence Britain's desire to have an unbiased observer on the spot.

ITALY'S POSITION

Italy's promise of support to the Austrian Chancellor is satisfactory, though no other course was likely in view of Italian policy. Relations between Germany and Italy are not so happy as they were at the outset and Signor Mussolini certainly does not desire a Nazi-controlled Austria upon his borders. There is, in fact, little scope for close collaboration between Fascist States. Their creed is essentially Nationalistic, and in a spirit which cannot fall to breed rivalries.

NAVAL RACE

America seems to be well embarked upon a highly dangerous naval policy and no-one is likely to be deceived by the claim that no naval race has commenced in the Pacific because Japan and the United States do not intend to exceed treaty limits. The treaty restrictions mean very little. Within three years, existing naval pacts will have expired and the prospects of a satisfactory recasting are exceedingly remote. Only a complete change in outlook can remove the suspicions created by events of the last twelve months and what hope is there of that?

THE "NEW DEAL"

Most of the players in the New Deal think they are working in a madhouse. They say that, privately—more than half in earnest. One presidential adviser, a nationally-known economist, summed up the situation when he confided: "No man has a rational picture of what is going on—in Washington to-day." It is difficult to convey an accurate impression of this atmosphere: hope mingled with misgivings. Amateurs and professionals sailing into uncharted economic seas. Constant attempts to reconcile the methods and aims of the emergency salvationists and the long-range planners. Confusion and incoherence of organisation beneath strong men too busy to be bothered with details. Rumours, half of them false, flying through the corridors. Men irked by delay and contemplative men irritated by haste. But, above all, a common driving urge to move forward through the forests of uncertainty.

UNIVERSITIES IN BRITAIN

At the recent opening of a new hall of residence at University College, Exeter, the hope was expressed that before long the college would be raised to the full status of a university, with the right to confer degrees. University College of Southampton is also eagerly looking forward to the day when it will become the official University of Wessex, while not many years have elapsed since the University College of Reading was transformed into a recognized university. It is thus apparent that the great force which during the nineteenth century multiplied the universities of England several times over has not yet spent itself. But there is beginning to develop a general feeling that perhaps England is getting too many universities.

LASTING VALUE?

The principal of University College, Exeter, Mr. John Murray, has himself expressed a doubt whether everything that has been done in the way of increasing university facilities will stand the test of time. This indicates a very reasonable and desirable attitude of caution. It would be in the highest degree unfortunate if the movement to found new universities attained such proportions that it conferred full university status on institutions not intellectually qualified to receive it. Everyone will agree that the multiplication of universities must not be accompanied by a lowering of standards.

WISE HUSBANDS DRESS TO PLEASE WIVES

"I LIKE YOU BEST IN THAT SUIT"

By JOAN KENNEDY

THERE is no doubt about it. Men, taking them in the mass, are bigger-minded than women. The externals of life do not worry them. What is in the parcel counts for more than does the paper and string of its wrappings. You may jump upon me right away and declare that men are attracted by pretty women. Of course they are—as bees are attracted by gay and scented flowers. But the velvet rover doesn't stay long unless the lovely bloom holds honey. And men—well! men marry plain women as well as pretty ones. An amazing number of very ordinary-looking women wear wedding rings.

WOMEN NOTICE EXTERNALS.

But my sex? Frankly, we are affected by externals. Though a woman does not fall in love with a man's suit, she is influenced by his personal appearance. A man may say blithely to his wife, "I'd love you just the same, my dear, if you went around in sackcloth!" but he knows she never will be satisfied with sackcloth or show herself so garbed. A woman enjoys making the best of what the Creator has given her, even when it is a bad bargain. If circumstance forced her into sackcloth she would see that the cut was good, the accessories right, and she would relieve penitential garb by plentiful embroidery.

And, just as every natural woman likes to make the best of herself, so she likes to make the best of her belongings. A husband is a belonging, and every married woman who has an atom of love left wishes to see her man looking his best. Only men slop and slack sartorially whenever they can.

This is one of the pin-pricks in the propriety of marriage. When you hear your wife say, "I love you in the suit!" then take notice. There is more behind the remark than perhaps you realise. It is a literal fact.

FATEFUL SUITS.

There are clothes you own and ways of wearing them which lose you a great deal of love. Rather terrible to think that it can be so, but you can believe me when I say that the woman who loves her man well enough to notice what he's wearing loves him more delightfully when he wears clothes which suit him.

Dress counts in marriage. I know a big-patterned suit whose wearer went eventually through the Divorce Court. If the story of that broken romance could be written it would have to begin in a tailor's shop. There was a pink shirt which caused a lover's tiff and a gaudy tie to which could be directly traced a woman's tantrums.

Like the red rag to a bull so is the untidy man to the woman who cares about his appearance. It takes an Adonis to look well as a tramp. Women who have untidy husbands know a passionate envy of those women whose men are always tidy, whose nails never go into mourning, whose chins never get that "rest" which the lazy fellows of life imagine to be so jolly for their jowls.

LOOK IN YOUR MIRROR.

Trivialities count with women. Often a man gets puzzled as to what has upset his wife, but were he to look in the mirror he might find his solution.

Few women care for the top but all women who love men care as to whether those men are neglecting themselves or looking their best. And it is true that a great many women love more dearly when their eyes are not offended. As a sex we are like that.

Even a mother will own that her maternal love wells up more strongly when she sees her children clean and lovely. The eye is charmed and the heart responds.

It must be that women are more fastidious as a sex than are men. They are repulsed by the ugly and unclean, by unloveliness, by lack of taste, and when their menfolk slack sartorially they are irritated. They feel that such details are a true indication of character.

The man who studies his wife's taste and does his best to please her eye always gets his reward. He finds it worth while. He keeps her pleased and pleasant.

Try it yourself when you are on holiday this summer. I dare say you can remember your wife having said she always thought you looked your best when you wore blue, or brown, or some other colour. Go out to-morrow, buy yourself a new tie of that favoured colour and keep it till the first day of your holiday. Wearing it then will give her the greatest pleasure.

SECRETS OF BLISS.

Domestic peace often hinges on small things, because small things make up the home world. Big troubles a woman can tackle, and over them come up trumps, but let the man she loves wear the clothes she loathes and he can easily lose by doing so.

A husband is very like a brown paper parcel. It is what is inside which matters most. His wife knows that, just as she understands that convention confines her man to the drabness of brown paper. But, womanlike, she wants a neat parcel, likes to decorate it and make the ends tidy, then to set her seal upon it before it appears in public.

Married men find that it pays to let their wives help decide their wardrobes. Jack knows that "I'll will always say: 'I like you in that suit' when the pattern and style are of her choosing."

COAL-PETROL

The Very Idea!

SURFER, SO GOOD

By Eddie Kelly, No Good

I must go down to the sea again,
To the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is an old surf-board,
And a wave just one inch high.

THAT'S what surfing does for us. We just break out into a rash of verse.

We went out to Repulse Bay on Sunday to have a regatta of our own. All these things we did without one regatta. What a sport!

Shore thing!

Surfboard riding is the greatest sport we can think of at the present moment, but unless one is very careful and lies absolutely still on the board one is apt to get damp.

The waves were two or three inches high when we ventured out on our board, and were we all wet?

It was a good job we had our bathing costume on.

Our headache suggested that we tack a few planks around the board to keep the water out. We told her nastily that when we wanted a sampan we'd get one.

We are glad that the government is not going to let surf-riders endanger their lives at this new sport.

We ourselves had a narrow escape from being battered to death when a wave came up behind us when we weren't looking.

Fortunately, we keep cool in emergencies, and we let the surf-board go just in time. But, as the headache asked us, what would have happened if we had been out of our depth. The answer is yes!

But you can't keep us kellys away from danger. The more dangerous a sport the more it appeals to us. We were recognised as one of the most daring exponents of marbles when we were at school, and it is on record that we once caught a single handed and without any assistance, a rabbit.

ROME BROADCASTS

"Hullo, everybody! Station Z-BC broadcasting the big Horatius fight from the banks of the Tiber. A wonderful sight, believe me. The Seven Hills are packed, and you couldn't find room for a lecturer's rod in the chariot-parking areas."

"Ah! Here they come! Remember, folk, all uniforms have been supplied by Brace Bros., and Horatius is using a super-chilled sword purchased at Block and Dorby's. Stand by a minute. Lars Porcena and the Tuscan lads are having their picture taken for the Buccus Breweries, Ltd., who supplied them with their world-famous products during training."

"Horatius looks in the pink, thanks to McRoman's Yeast Tablets. What a dandy shield he's carrying! Brassbounders, Ltd., certainly turned out a nice piece of work there."

"Just a minute. Horatius is now taking up his stand at the bridge, supported on the right by Spurius Lartius, and on the left by Herminius. The Tuscan lads are waiting eagerly for the gong. They're off!"

"Bang! Crash! Oh, listeners, this is great! Horatius is swinging a great blade. The Tuscans are falling like nine-pins. Oo! Larwood wasn't in it with this lad. Aunus is down; Solus has gone; so has Picus! So has Ocaus! Lausulus is out!"

"Here comes the great Lord of Luna for his issue. Bang! The Lunatics will need a new Lord, I'm afraid. Hal Hal!"

"Stand by a minute, listeners. Horatius is wiping about 14 Tuscans off his sword. I thought so. The supply of Tuscans has run out, and Horatius has been declared champion Bridgeholder of the world. A great lad! He clipped 2 3/8sec. off the record. Good-day, everybody."

through the coalfields of the country.

Are we now to proceed to create another great industry—that of coal-petrol—to rank in importance with the electricity and gas industries? By liquefying one of our great national assets are we to speed up the present trade revival?

Mr. MacDonald made it clear that the Government guarantee which is for a period of 10 years from April next is extended to whatever date may be decided by the Government.

KULING CONFERENCE RUMOURS

CHINA TO SPEND
$130,000,000THREE-YEAR PLAN
FOR AIR

AIR MINISTRY

A Japanese source reports that, as a result of the Kuling conference, China has resolved to embark upon a gigantic three-year aerial development plan, the expenses of which will total $130,000,000.

The project is reported to involve the building up of large military and civil air forces and European and American aviators will be engaged as instructors.

The report declares that, as from next year, training will commence at Shanghai, Peking and Tientsin to ensure the defence of China from aerial attacks.

The creation of an Air Ministry is also planned, according to the report; of which Mr. Chang Wei-chung will be the head.

Marshal Chiang Kai-shek has ordered Gen. Soong Che-yuan, the Governor of Chahar, to take sole charge of the reorganisation of the allied armies in the province, besides taking over control of the administration.

Gen. Soong, who is preparing to return to Chahar, stated to pressmen the plans for the rehabilitation of the province have been arranged in detail.

Gen. Fong Ping-hsun, the commander of the Central forces on the Peking-Suiyuan Railway, returned to Kuling last evening.

Prior to his departure from Peking he declared his undivided support of Gen. Soong in the administration of Chahar. He added that he had no intention whatsoever of accepting the post of Governor of the province.

The Central Government regards the rehabilitation of the men under arms in Chahar as of paramount importance. In view of the lack of funds the number of irregulars to be incorporated into the regular army will be strictly limited.

MISSING WAR FUNDS.

The special committee, appointed to investigate the scandal of the missing funds raised by popular subscription for Gen. Ma Chan-shan to assist him in his resistance against the Japanese in Manchuria, have written to the authorities urging the trial of Mr. Chu Ching-lan, an ex-Civil Governor of Canton and well-known famine and war relief worker. It is reported that of the $20,000,000 raised, Gen. Ma received less than $2,000,000.

MAN WITH USELESS
PISTOLHEAVY FINE INFLICTED
"BY REQUEST"

Ho Kwok-fung, unemployed, a passenger aboard the s.s. Tin Yat, was fined $200 or two months' hard labour by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning for possession of an automatic pistol without a licence from the I. G. P.

Sub-Inspector Kirby said the gun was found wrapped in paper under the lid of a flap in defendant's portmanteau. The pistol was useless, it was rusty and had no magazine.

The Inspector added—I have been instructed by Mr. Booth, Director of Criminal Intelligence, to ask for a substantial fine as the bona fides of the defendant are very doubtful.

The defendant stated he brought the weapon down from Canton. He was unaware of Hongkong regulations. Confiscation of the gun was ordered.

DAILY EXPRESS ON RUBBER"Underground Attempts to Coerce Malaya"

U.S. CONSUMPTION

London, Aug. 17.

Under splash headings—"Financiers Threat to Great Industry," "Secret War Waged on British Rubber," "Employment Menaced by Dutch Scheme"—the Daily Express declares that a strong bid is now being made by underground channels to coerce the Malayan rubber industry to restriction.

If this campaign is successful, the paper states, the effects will be as follows:

(1) It will fetter an important British manufacture for years; (2) It will lay waste countless acres of British plantations and dissipate the British capital invested in them;

(3) It will reduce to one-fifth the planned financial yield of rubber in Malaya;

(4) It will throw out of employment a quarter of a million of British Malaysians and a large number of English and Scottish officials and create unemployment in the rubber and allied industries in Great Britain;

(5) It will nurse the out-of-date plantations in Netherlands India until they are able to compete with the British.

The article concludes: "Meanwhile, British producing interests are fighting restriction tooth and nail."

In a leading article the Financial Times says: "The weight of opinion in favour of control of output is undoubtedly growing."

New U.S. Consumption Record.

The average daily consumption of rubber in the United States in July was 2,007 tons, a new record.

Owing to the fact that there were only 26 working days in that month compared to 26 in June, the total consumption was 50,184 tons, as compared with 51,326 in the previous month.

The striking increase in U.S. consumption is seen from the following monthly figures for this year:

January	21,661
February	20,462
March	18,047
April	26,226
May	44,581
June	51,326
July	50,184

WHERE CAN THEY
HAWK?EVEN MAGISTRATE IS PERPLEXED

"You drive them off the main roads, and if you are going to chase them from side streets, you may as well stop issuing hawkers' licences" said Mr. Wynne-Jones in Court this morning when a hawker was charged with obstruction in Pottinger Street.

Sub-Inspector Russell—The orders are main roads and the more important side streets.

Mr. Wynne-Jones—Do you consider Pottinger Street an important side street?

S. I. Russell replied that he did, and explained there was a certain amount of traffic there, and the part of Pottinger Street near Queen's Road Central was used as a rickshaw parking stand.

Defendant was cautioned.

Defendant said he had found the two articles in a ruined house near the Hongkong Hotel Garage. Sub-Inspector Nollath said that these articles were stolen on May 12 from Mr. Walker's residence at Mr. Parish. The Police were informed that he had possession of these articles. His house was searched, and the two bowls found in a hole in the wall.

GANG ATTACKIRON BAR TUCKED UP MAN'S SLEEVE

Premeditated gang attack on a lorry driver, who had previously been accidentally knocked down one of their number, was nipped in the bud when Police yesterday morning arrested Chiu Chi, 23, unemployed who was fomenting squabbling by the wayside with an iron bar tucked up his sleeve. He was awaiting the rest of the gang.

He was charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning and sent to prison for six weeks, the magistrate remarking that he was "a dangerous sort of man."

THE EZRA CASE

LITTLE HOPE OF LENIENCY

PROSECUTOR'S ATTITUDE

San Francisco, Aug. 17. The hopes of Mr. Judah Ezra and his brother, Isaac, that they would be given exceptionally lenient treatment by the courts in return for the services of the former in exposing the activities of the narcotic smuggling ring in which they have confessed to being partners were rudely shattered to day.

The Federal District Attorney, P. H. McPike, who has conducted the investigation of the so-called "Shanghai Dope Case," told the United Press this afternoon that he would recommend that Mr. Judah Ezra should be sentenced to a maximum seventeen years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Mr. McPike also revealed that he will ask the Court to impose a heavy monetary fine upon the former Shanghai business man, in addition to the prison sentence.

The prosecutor did not state definitely what recommendations would be made to the bench with regard to Mr. Isaac Ezra, whose brother has sought to shield him throughout the sensational disclosures of the past two months.

CODE SOLVED.

It was gathered, however, that Mr. McPike's recommendations as to Mr. Isaac Ezra would not differ greatly from those which he will make with regard to the brother, who has repeatedly avowed himself to be the sole leader of the drug ring.

Mr. McPike told the United Press to-day that his office had finally succeeded in solving the secret code used by the narcotic smugglers. Messages sent by various members of the ring, Mr. McPike said, showed conclusively that the two brothers were equally guilty of directing the operations of the smugglers, which the prosecutor described as "enormous."

Mr. Judah Ezra already has been sentenced to deportation from the United States, upon the completion of any prison sentence which may be given him. Having become an American citizen, Mr. Isaac Ezra is not subject to deportation.

MOROCCO FIGHT NEARS END

CAMPAIGN MEETS WITH SUCCESS

Rabat, Aug. 18. The French campaign in Morocco to subdue rebellious tribesmen and to realize Marshal Lyautey's dream of bringing Morocco within the Pax Gallica is nearing completion after years of guerrilla warfare.

During the latest advances of four mobile columns of French and native levies, which are clearing up the last unpacified portion in the great Atlas mountains, over 5,000 Berbers entered the French lines to hand over their arms.

The submission of these fierce warriors has ended the siege on the last strategical citadel of the tribesmen, and the task of pacification in the high and arid mountains of the Grand Atlas is now practically finished.—Reuter.

MUNITIONS DEPOT CATCHES FIRE

A BAD SCARE IN LILLE

Paris, Aug. 20. A panic was created on Thursday among the inhabitants of the city of Lille by the news that a big subterranean munitions depot in the nearby village of Aire-sur-Lys had for some unknown reason caught fire and that the flames were slowly eating their way towards the main depot. The munitions dump which was originally established by British troops during the war and is only 200 feet from the highroad, was reported to contain mainly gas bombs and the fire was therefore fraught with the gravest danger for the entire region. The fire was extinguished before serious peril developed.

duction of petrol, regardless of the method.

There are two processes of production in the field—hydrogenation and low temperature distillation.

Hydrogenation is the combination of hydrogen with bituminous coal under great pressure and heat to obtain hydrocarbons, i.e., petrol spirit. It yields little in the way of by-products.

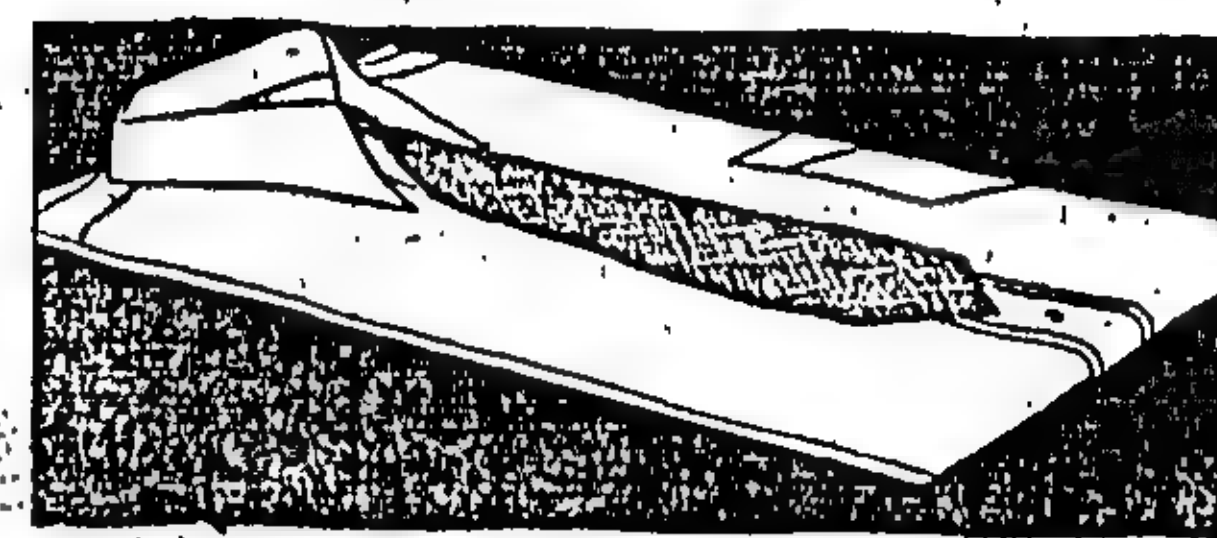

Low temperature distillation is a baking process which yields not only oil but coke and cresote in great quantities as by-products.

COSTS OF PRODUCTION.
The hydrogenation process is receiving great attention because it is the one adopted by Imperial Chemical Industries, which has spent large sums of money experiments at its plant at Billham-on-Tees. Aeroplane motor-car tests have proved conclusively the high quality of petrol produced there and at other hydrogenation plants.

What of the costs of production? Prior to the latest improvement the process of hydrogenation, it is calculated that this process will produce petrol at 9d. a gallon, minimum of 200,000 tons made, the price including a reasonable rate of interest for the capital employed. In the production of 200,000 tons of petrol 800,000 of coal would be consumed.

These figures cover only a small percentage of our petrol requirements. If they all be met by nationally produced coal-petrol at least 100,000 would find employment in the industry.

EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Frits, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done 1,900,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market:

Rails led a substantial rally near the close after dull irregularity due to favourable July earnings and continued favourable carloadings. Our New York Office cable (This Morning) Stocks: The market went through resistance levels which indicates that substantially higher prices are in early prospect. Wheat: Easier. Early startling scarcity of winter wheat offerings advanced southwest cash sharply and mills bought futures. It looks like wheat has started for higher levels. Cotton: Steadied on anticipation of some market on arrival of damage to crop to-morrow, and Secretary Wallace's announcement of greatly reduced acreage plans next year. Difficulty of mill sales at higher prices is causing poor spot demand but the market is inclined to advance on anything that is favourable. Silver: Steady and inactive. Our New York Office cable (Last Night) Stocks: Current strength is likely to continue with rails and oils likely to lead. Wheat: Liverpool firm. Our market lacks new buying. News bullish and the situation warrants higher prices but would await declines to make purchases. Cotton: Opened lower and barely steady on hedge selling. There are some reports of boll weevil damage but it is not yet a market factor. The market is very quiet.

HONGKONG'S FIRST ELECTRICALLY-DRIVEN FERRY

BUILT FOR STAR FERRY CO.

LAUNCHED THIS MORNING

EXPERIMENTAL NEW SHIP

Amid the crackle of fireworks strung from her bows, the "Electric Star", the latest addition to the Star Ferry Fleet of vessels, was christened and launched this morning by Mrs. H. H. Priestley.

The ceremony took place at the South China Motor Ship Building and Repairing Works, where the vessel was built, in the presence of a large gathering.

The Electric Star is electrically-driven and is one of the first diesel-electric ferry boats to be built in the British Empire. She will shortly be put on regular service between Hongkong and Kowloon.

MR. PATERSON'S SPEECH.

At a reception held subsequent to the launching, Mr. J. J. Paterson, chairman of the directors of the Star Ferry Co., Ltd., said:—On behalf of the "Star" Ferry Co., Ltd., I wish to thank Mrs. Priestley for successfully launching our new ferry boat. This is the sixth new vessel we have brought into service within the past nine years and it behaves itself as well as the previous five as I am sure it will we shall be satisfied.

The machinery for propelling the "Electric Star" is a new type to be seen in this part of the world—in fact, I understand it is the first of its kind to be seen within the Empire. I will, however, leave Mr. Hodgson to describe to you the remarkable qualities of the engines.

I again thank Mrs. Priestley for kindly launching the "Electric Star" and I wish success to the builders, The South China Motorship Building and Repairing Works, Ltd.

MR. HODGSON'S SPEECH.

Mr. P. M. Hodgson, chairman of the directors of the South China Motor Ship Building and Repairing Works, in a brief speech, in which he described the vessel, said:—

You have just witnessed the christening and the launching of the new Star Ferry "Electric Star", and I must thank you for your attendance here this morning so early. As I have no doubt you all want to get away to your work, I will, if you will permit me, only detain you a few minutes.

My Company is much indebted to Mrs. Priestley in coming here so early to launch the vessel, and, in wishing the owners success, we trust this Ferry will prove to be not only remunerative but satisfactory in every way.

I will ask you to drink to the long life and success of the "Electric Star".

A silver rose bowl mounted on a black wood pedestal was then presented to Mrs. Priestley as a memento of the occasion by Mr. Hodgson. The bowl was inscribed "Presented to Mrs. H. H. Priestley for the kindness in christening the Double-ended Diesel electric ferry "Electric Star" at the South China Motorship Building and Repairing Works, Hongkong, on Wednesday 23rd, August, 1933."

Mrs. Priestley suitably acknowledged the gift.

DESCRIPTION OF VESSEL.

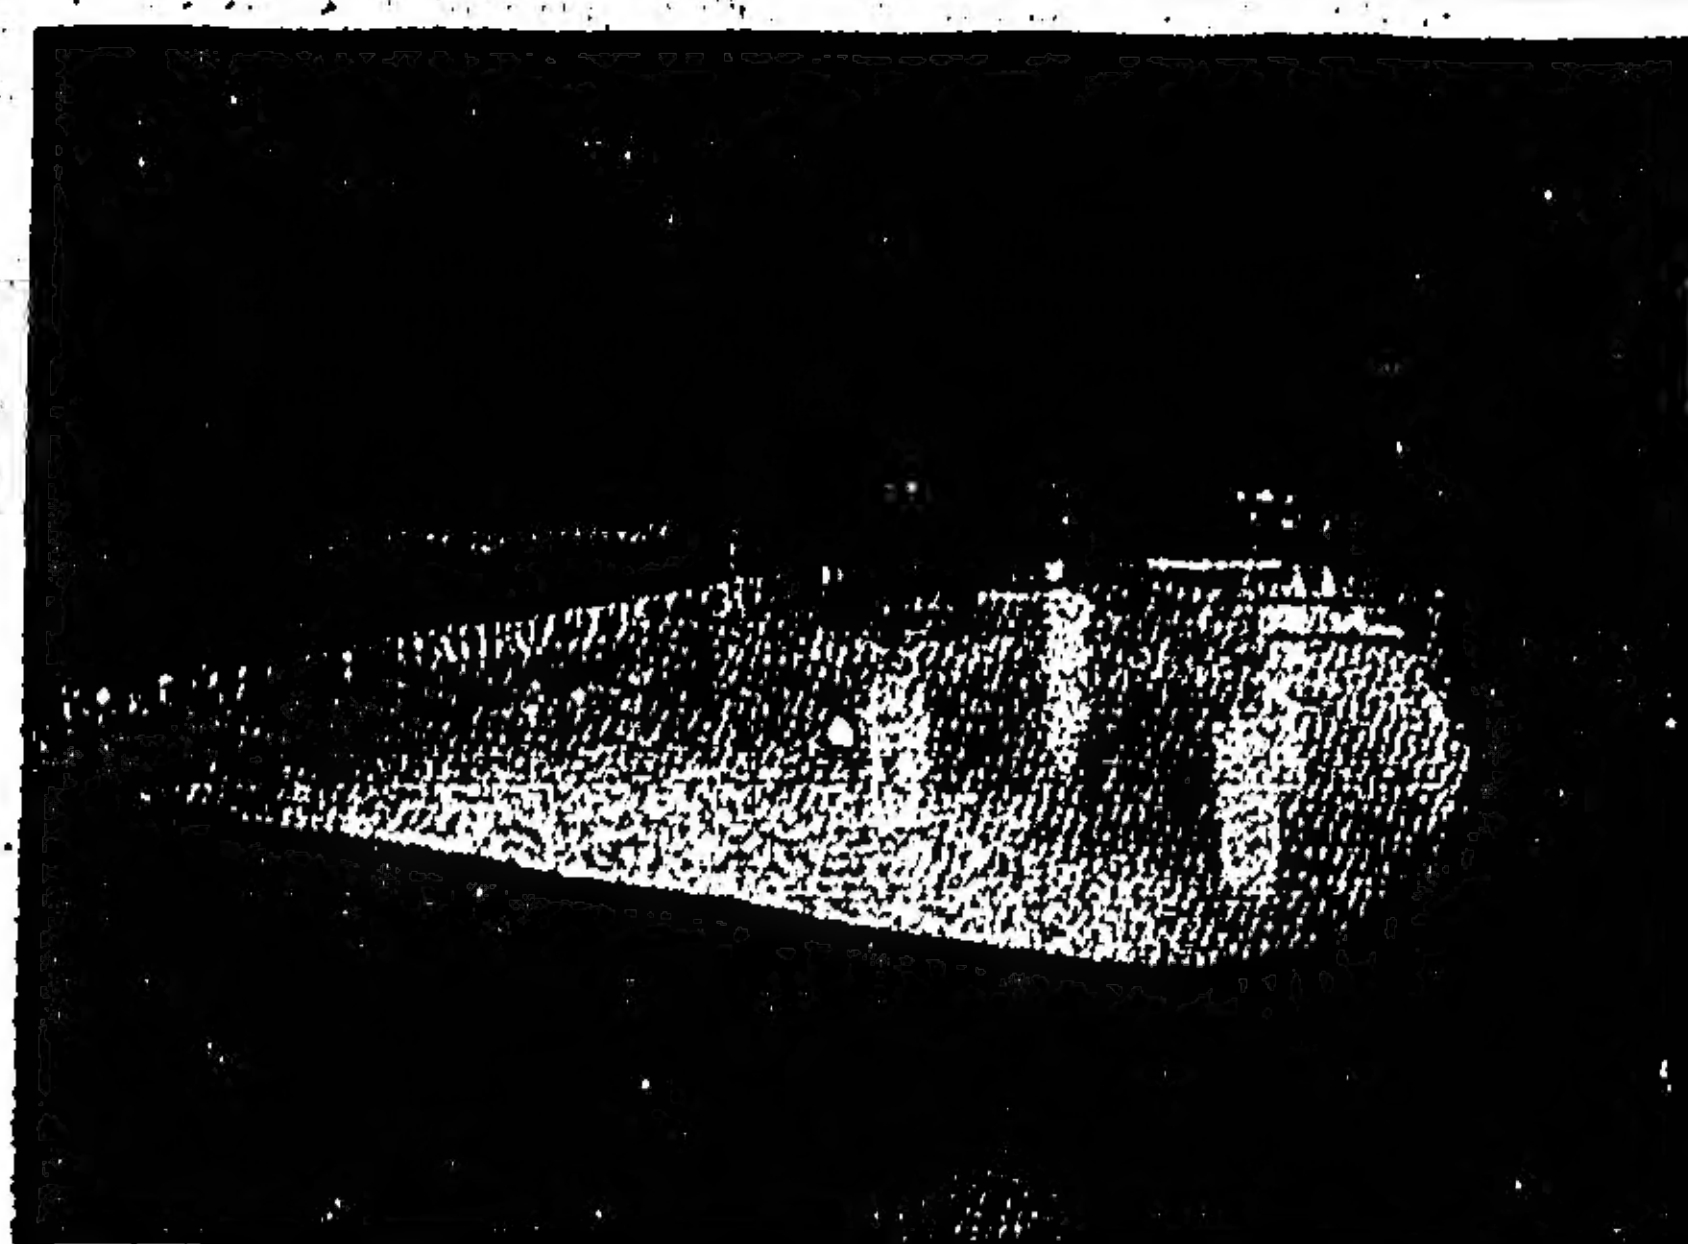

For a long time it has been urged that the Diesel Electric Ferry has a great deal to recommend it, and in theory most people have been agreeing with this view. Each port authority or ferry-boat owner, however, has always been inclined to leave it to the other man to be the first to start.

It is with gratification, therefore, that Hongkong is able to boast the construction of one of the first diesel-electric ferry boats within the Empire and a type, moreover, remarkable for its unorthodox propulsion.

This ship named the Electric Star, has horizontal diesel engines driving the generators for supplying current to the motors, and is in every way of such a special and unusual type that it is worth detailed consideration. It is a double-ended ferry with a single screw and a rudder at each end. Owned by the Star Ferry Company, it will operate on the regular service between Hongkong and Kowloon.

DIMENSIONS OF FERRY.

The dimensions of the new Star Ferry are:—
Length over all 110'
Between perpendiculars 110'
Beam moulded 28'
Depth moulded 10'

A spectacular view showing the whole area of new Bathing Pool at Hastings evenly illuminated at night G.E.C. floodlights.

approximately. The general appearance is very similar to the existing ferries with the exception of the shorter funnel, the beam windows in the first class deck shelters, and the third class deck where there will be considerably more available passenger space than on previous ferries having exactly the same overall dimensions.

This is due principally to the absence of the large engine and boiler casings. The under-deck arrangement is, however, totally different, the machinery being installed in three separate watertight compartments instead of one as on the existing ferries. The central compartment is termed the generator and pumping room and the immediate adjacent compartment separated from the former by water tight bulk heads and quick action hand operated water tight doors are termed the propulsion motor rooms. The remaining compartments are very similar to the existing ferries. It will be noted, therefore, that with the better subdivision arrangement passengers are assured of greater safety in the unlikely event of the ferry being damaged in collision or groundings.

ARDUOUS DUTY.

Again the centre of gravity of the machinery is much more than in the existing ferries and even with the finer lines the stability should be at least equal to its predecessors.

The contract for the ferry was placed with the South China Motor Ship Building and Repairing Works. The main engine and auxiliary machinery has been supplied by Messrs. The Premier Gas Engine Company who have subcontracted with the British Thomson Houston Company for the electrical equipment. The electrical capstans at each end of the vessel for handling the anchors have been supplied by Messrs. Emerson Walker. The auxiliary generator and compressor set has been supplied by Messrs. Russell Newbury in conjunction with the British Thomson Houston Company and Messrs. Renell. Messrs. Drysdale have supplied the pumps. The hand steering gear which is of a special type and the water tight doors and gear have been constructed at the yard. The simple balanced rudders and stern frame by the Deutsche Werft Company.

In the new ferry boat one vis-a-vis engine will be fitted and will drive a direct current British Thomson Houston generator with suitable exciter gear. The generator will supply current to one of the two propelling motors at a time according to the direction of the ship.

FIRST OF SERIES?

It is said that the new ferry will be, in all probability, only the first of a series to replace all the steam ferries of the Hongkong Kowloon ferry fleet. This appears to be a very ambitious programme of reconstruction, and one which, no doubt, will take place over a period of years, if the ship launched to-day gives the satisfaction there is every reason to suppose she should give.

The Crossley Premier in her engine is specially adapted for the purpose to which it is put and will permit of direct control from the bridge. Differing from the present type it will be coupled with electric generators at each end of the boat which will form the actual driving power; only one generator operating at a time and not both as at present. The boat will be provided with simple balanced rudders. This description is in parts somewhat incoherent, but if for the expression "one generator operating at one time" we substitute "one propelling prime mover," then we begin to get something of a picture of what the new ship will be like.

STAR FERRY LEADS.

Pilot-house control, similar to the Ward Leonard system, will the crowded waters of the Harbour. In fact, so much of an improvement will this ship be over existing vessels, that it would not be surprising to learn that other owners of steamships in the Far East and elsewhere had made up their minds to follow the example of the Star Ferry Company.

The engine in the new ship is a Crossley-Premier 4-cycle vis-a-vis KOB unit, and has eight cylinders opposed operating four cranks, and the rated power of the unit is to be 540 b.h.p. at 270 revolutions. It is to be noted, however, that this engine is capable of developing 600 horsepower at 300 revolutions and a maximum of 660 b.h.p. for one hour. In spite of the tendency there is to-day to suggest that if diesel-electric propulsion is chosen, only the highest speeds of prime mover should be used, the owners have deliberately chosen a slower speed with a more moderate rating. The main B.T.H. generator is a 300 kw. unit of D.C. type, and this supplies power for propulsion to one of two 420 shaft horse-power propelling motors. One of these is operating at the particular end of the ship which happens to be the "stern" end, while the other is merely idling. Control of the propelling motor in operation is from the bridge.

THE CONTROL EQUIPMENT.

The control equipment for this vessel is of special B.T.H. design and is the result of experience obtained over a period of 10 years, during which the B.T.H. Co. have been actively working on electric ship-propulsion problems as they arose on the numerous equipments they have supplied. The control system is a distinct advance in that it positively prevents overloads on the electrical system, propeller shafting and engine by a power-limiting device instead of the more usual overload trip gear, the operation of which ordinarily results in total interruption of the power supply. Should an overload occur, furthermore, this B.T.H. control system does not depend on a contact-making device or system of relays for its efficient and effective operation either with the vessel under way or when manoeuvring and reversing. All the wires and cables were supplied by Callender's.

QUEER MURDER CASE IN U.S.

FOUR OF FAMILY POISONED

WARRANT FOR DEAD MAN

New York, Aug. 17.

A man who identified himself as Mark Shank, of Akron, Ohio, and who described himself as an attorney, was arrested at Hot Springs, Arkansas, to-day, on a charge of murdering four members of a family of five.

Shank is alleged to have administered poison to Mr. Alvin Cooley, 40, of Akron, his wife and two of their three sons, one aged eleven and the other seven.

Mr. Cooley was driving his family in his car when he died at the wheel. The machine crashed into a fence and neighbouring farmers, on arriving to give whatever help they could, found four dead bodies. Only one of the three brothers, who apparently had not been poisoned, was alive.

Meanwhile the sheriff at Wooster, Ohio, had issued a warrant for the arrest of "a man named Cooley" on a charge of stealing receipts that were to be used as evidence in the trial of Clarence Braucher for forgery. Shank was Braucher's attorney.—Reuter.

OFFICERS LOSE GRAMOPHONE

STOLEN BY COOLIE

Two coolies, Siu Tsai and Yuen Tung, appeared before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistrate's this morning, the former charged with the larceny of a gramophone from the Officers' Quarters in the Shamshui Military Camp and the latter charged with receiving stolen property.

Detective Sergeant Goodwin said that the gramophone was stolen early in the morning of August 9, but no trace of it was found until two days ago when the second defendant was seen by a Chinese detective about to pawn it. On being arrested, defendant took the detective to the first defendant.

Sentences of four months on the first defendant and one month on the second were passed.

PACIFIC COAST RELIEVED

RAIN SENDS DOWN MERCURY

San Francisco, Aug. 17.

The perspiring inhabitants of the Pacific Coast to-day experienced some relief from the extreme heat, which has already caused eleven deaths this week, when heavy down-pours of rain, accompanied by lightning and thunder, sent the mercury down several points.

The electrical disturbances, however, increased the forest fire menace. Eight fires are reported to be raging in Oregon, but they are said to be under control.

The thunderstorm to-day interfered with communications on trans-continental telephone lines.—Reuter.

COOLIE SWINDLED

BUT RUSE COSTS MAN PRISON SENTENCE

The latest ruse for obtaining money has cost Lam Fong yidus Sing Kee six weeks hard labour.

The defendant was charged before Mr. Schofield this morning with having obtained $7.75 by means of a trick from Lam Fu, fook of a charcoal shop in 49, High Street.

Sub-Inspector Fender said the defendant went to the shop and asked the fook to take fifty cabbies of charcoal to an address in Bonham Road. The fook did so, and the defendant then asked him to go back and bring another fifty cabbies as well as $7.75, for which he would receive $10. The fook came back with the charcoal and the money, which he handed to defendant, expecting to receive $10. The defendant took the

ANTI-RABIES VACCINE

MERITS DESCRIBED IN COURT

A MAGISTRATE'S DECISION

The potentialities of the Mulford anti-rabies vaccine were described by the Colonial Veterinary Surgeon, Mr. W. J. E. Mackenzie, in the Central Police Court this morning before Mr. Wynne-Jones when the adjourned summons against Mr. J. T. Prior, of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist for allowing his dog abroad unmuzzled was decided.

In imposing a fine of $8, Mr. Wynne-Jones said he had to take the law as he found it, but at the same time he admired the defendant's good sense in having the dog vaccinated against rabies. Mr. Wynne-Jones added that he would have his own dog vaccinated without much further ado.

The magistrate asked Mr. Mackenzie whether, in his opinion, he considered vaccination a safe substitute for muzzling.

EXPERIMENTS NECESSARY

Mr. Mackenzie replied—With regard to the Mulford anti-rabies vaccine, it has proved effective in California against the strain. In Hongkong we have never had the opportunity to make a reliable test of its efficacy against the local strain. The only evidence available would lead one to presume that it is. That is as far as we can go.

Magistrate—But you are not in a position to say yes or no?

The witness replied that to be absolutely certain one must have a certain number of vaccinated and unvaccinated dogs and they must be kept under observation. They must be exposed to the disease artificially and experimentally.

Many years ago in Granville Road, a rabid dog went into a house and bit two dogs, came out and ran into the next house and bit two other dogs. There was no doubt that the attacking animal had rabies. The four bitten dogs had been vaccinated against the disease but this was not known at the time.

When the incident occurred it was only known that the first two dogs were vaccinated, but it was afterwards revealed that the second two, owned by a newspaperman who had recently arrived, had been vaccinated ten months before. In that instance all four dogs had been vaccinated and did not get the disease. Although they were bitten badly.

SOLICITOR'S GOOD SENSE.

The magistrate (to Mr. Prior)—I have got to take the law as I find it, naturally, but I admire your good sense in taking every precaution. I don't think though, it exonerates your responsibility from the law.

Mr. Prior—I never said so. Mr. Wynne-Jones—Your plea of mitigation, Mr. Prior, seems to be this. That what you have done is to your own personal satisfaction and not to the satisfaction of the public. I shall have my dog vaccinated without much further ado, and also keep him muzzled.

Mr. Prior—My dog is muzzled. Mr. Wynne-Jones—It was not then.

POSSIBLE ERRORS IN DIAGNOSIS

Austrian Method in Blood Tests

In certain disorders the finding of living bacteria in the blood of the sufferers is an important part of diagnosis, and for many years attempts have been made to detect the tuberculosis organisms in this way.

No constant and striking success was obtained until in recent years Professor E. Lowenstein and his colleagues in Vienna discovered a new method of procedure, and since the publication of their results there has been a pilgrimage of pathologists to the scene of the search in order to obtain first-hand experience of the technique. It was soon apparent, however, that although successful in Vienna, the method failed completely in almost every other laboratory in the world.

Since Professor Lowenstein had started the medical profession by finding tuberculosis organisms not only in tuberculous patients, but also in sufferers from rheumatoid arthritis and certain disorders of the nervous system, this discrepancy in the results obtained by different experts made it essential that the whole matter should be examined critically before possible fallacies had led to serious error.

RARE INSTANCES.

It is concluded that although in certain types of tuberculosis, especially in severe generalised disease, the bacilli may be present in the blood in sufficient numbers to be detected, this is comparatively rare, and there are many possible sources of error in the bacteriological methods advocated in recent years.

The use of old microscope slides, contaminated materials (harmless bacilli similar in appearance may even occur in tap water), and especially the assumption that the growth of organisms on special culture medium necessarily means that these are tubercle bacilli, are all fallacies which appear in the published results of certain workers.

The report contains in an appendix a detailed statement of all the precautions necessary in practice for the unequivocal demonstration of the tubercle bacillus in infected material. The high standards there set out are a good example of the quality of work in bacteriology in this country.

Many new features are being devised for "British Week" which is being held in Finland from 4th to 10th September.

The display of merchandise customary on such occasions promises to be extensive for from Lancashire alone thirty leading firms are sending representatives and goods within the next fortnight.

H.M.S. York, which the Admiralty are sending will carry the band of the Second Battalion Black Watch and the Air Ministry are contributing sixty models of different types of British aircraft.

Among the many varied events arranged for the week, Sir John Squire, the noted poet and critic, will lecture in English literature, Mr. Douglas Kennedy and a team from English Folk Dance Society will demonstrate old English Country and Morris dances, and Messrs. Brock will provide a fireworks display.—British Wireless.

Psychology Tests in the Services

IMPROVING STANDARD OF RECRUITING

The increasing extent to which psychology is invading the Services is indicated in the annual report of the Industrial Health Research Board.

Psychological tests to determine the driving capacity of recruits to the Royal Tank Corps have reached the stage, the report states, when they can be practically applied with some prospect that the standard of recruiting will be improved.

These tests resemble in some respects those carried out with other types of transport drivers, and the results will be a contribution to the study of the factors involved in proficient motor-driving and repairs on the road.

Promising results have also been obtained with tests on certain groups in the Royal Engineers, and other tests, which gave positive results in a preliminary inquiry, are now being tried practically in the submission of a final report.

The general work of the Board covers a wide field, ranging from the industrial drawbacks of dust to the effect of noise.

TERRIBLE FLIGHT

ASSYRIANS MASSACRED BY IRAQUIS

Nicosia (Cyprus, Aug. 22. Marshmum, hereditary Patriarch of the Assyrians, who was deported from Iraq, has arrived here accompanied by his father and brother. Interviewed the Patriarch declared that the plight of the Assyrians was desperate in the extreme. They were scattered and homeless and exposed to attack from marauders, Kurds and Iraqis.

The Patriarch maintained that 325 women, children and old men had been massacred at Semel and over 500 at other places.

The Iraqi army, he said, was responsible for the massacres, at which the Government connived.

Marshmum left Baghdad on condition that he be allowed to place his cause before the League of Nations.—Reuter.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

British International's latest farce, "My Wife's Family" will open tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre. It is an adaptation of the play of the same name by an American author and the fact that it was originally performed in Chicago where it had a record run, survived by the entire cast, speaks well for its popularity. Re-adjusted for screen purposes, the story is concerned with a Mother-in-law.

The director of the film, Monty Banks, experienced tremendous difficulty in finding a typical mother-in-law. Leading character actresses of the angular, vinegar variety and stout aggressive types underwent exhaustive tests before Amy Veness was given the part.

The action in the picture takes place in and around a country house and a beautiful garden which boasts ornamental water, rose-arbours, crazy pavings, box hedges and shady trees in the background for the exterior scenes.

Gene Gerrard stars in "My Wife's Family" supported by Muriel Angelus, Jimmy Gorden, Amy Veness, Charles Paton and Dodo Watts.

"Born Lucky"

The story of Cinderella up-to-date! Such is an apt description of "Born Lucky", the Westminster Films Production, is now showing at the King's Theatre. The story, taken from the novel "Mops", by Oliver Sandys, traces the rise of an obscure little music-hall singer to fame and fortune on the West End stage. Talbot O'Farrell, the world-famous singer of Irish songs, makes his film debut in the leading role as the kindly old singer who befriends the heroine, played with great verve and charm by Rene Ray. John Longden, famous British screen star, who appeared in the first all-British talkie, plays the hero, while other members of the cast are Ben Welden, Helen Ferraro, Barbara Gott, Glen Pointing and Roland Gillette.

The picture, which was produced by Jerry Jackson and directed by Michael Powell, is also notable for its music. Talbot O'Farrell, in his own inimitable style, sings one of his typical songs, while Rene Ray sings the fascinating "Oh, Mister Moon", specially written and composed for the film by George and Holt Marvel. The dialogue is in the extremely capable hands of Jefferson Farjeon, the noted author of "No. 17", "The House Opposite" and other thrillers.

"To-day We Live"

The first joint appearance in a talking film of Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper is now showing at the Queen's in "To-day We Live" in a happy, even for moviegoers. For here is a picture which combines romance of a stirring order with a clean-cut, forceful story of the war with the emphasis laid on the part played by the commanders of the dangerous British two-man torpedo boats, known as the "Skeeter-boat".

Miss Crawford, who seems to grow more exciting in appearance with each succeeding vehicle, has a striking role as the aristocratic English girl who cannot stand remaining at home while her brother and the two men who love her are at the front. Kenneth Tynan, the brother, and Robert Young, the childhood sweetheart, are members of the torpedo squad while Gary Cooper, who is closest to her heart enrolls in the flying forces. In order to be near these three, Miss Crawford becomes a member of a British ambulance unit.

It is when Cooper is reported killed that the hysteria of the war forces Miss Crawford to give herself to the man who has loved her from childhood. Cooper's unexpected return precipitates a stirring dramatic climax. The picture is brought to a smashing close when two men give up their lives in the sinking of a ship in order to save Cooper for the girl whom they all love.

"Baroud"

"I wonder if it is realised," asks Rex Ingram, producer of the spectacular Ideal talkie film, "Baroud", which comes to the King's Theatre next Sunday, "that slavery still exists in Morocco, but that the slaves invariably desire to remain in bondage. Their liberty could be theirs, if they wished, simply by applying to the Bureau des Affaires Indigenes. But no one ever applies! Mabrrouka, for instance, my heroine's nurse in "Baroud" ("Baroud" means tribal war-and watching the storm as the train sped through the countryside. This was Eve's wedding night and she was alone, bidden for New York on business. Bixby's store. What a situation! How had she found strength to tear herself away? How could she leave Dick like that without hurting him dreadfully, she asked herself. And who was that man with the two girls? Could they have made up a foursome for an impromptu party? Could Dick be blamed if he joined them?

Suppose he should never forgive her? Suppose she never saw Dick again? Suppose, something terrible happened to punish her for leaving him this way? Eve slipped down under the covers and pulled the sheet close so that only her face peeped out for air. So had she done when she was a little girl and became frightened in the night at imaginary figures and sounds. And so she prayed as she had prayed when she was a little girl—her very own prayer addressed to a Divinity as real, as friendly, as familiar almost as her own parents. "Oh, God, please have Dick forgive me; and help me to be good to him!"

Would there be a telegram in the morning?

sure) may be regarded as a slave that bosses the boss. "Mabrrouka, who is drawn from life, may afford the public a new angle on what slavery really means. The prophet Mohammed commanded 'Feed and clothe your slaves as you feed and clothe yourselves—before God you are responsible for them.' And I will say that the happiest people I have ever met are so-called slaves."

"Baroud" is a thrill-laden romance dealing with the age-old problems of East and West, and is set in the picturesque Atlas Mountains of North Africa. Film-lovers of every type should make a point of seeing this extraordinarily lovely production.

MR. PELHAM'S POST.

H.K. COMMERCIAL COUNSELLOR
LOR TRIBUTED IN SHANGHAI

The British Chamber of Commerce Journal of Shanghai states: "Mr. George Clinton Pelham, who has been attached to the office of H. M. Commercial Counsellor of Legation at Shanghai, has been appointed Commercial Secretary in Hongkong. The Journal extends to Mr. G. C. Pelham its wholehearted congratulations on his appointment as Commercial Secretary in Hongkong, at the same time much regrets his departure from Shanghai, where, during the past year in the office of H. M. Commercial Counsellor of Legation, he has not only made a host of friends in the commercial community, but has shown a thorough knowledge of the many difficult questions with which he has had to deal. It is no doubt plaudits to say that Shanghai's loss is Hongkong's gain, but it is undeniably true. Shanghai will have lost an officer of outstanding ability. The honour conferred upon him is more noteworthy as he is taking up a post which is usually reserved for more senior men. The Journal wishes him every success in his new sphere and can assure the commercial interests in Hongkong that they have in Mr. Pelham a man whose clear thinking will be a great asset and whose general disposition will make for him many friends."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

A question often asked regarding the constructive one over one system of bidding is, "Do weak third and fourth hand opening bids get you into any trouble?"

I would like to answer this by saying that seldom have I ever seen a good player using this system of bidding get himself into trouble when playing rubber bridge. However, occasionally, when playing duplicate bridge, a weak third or fourth hand opening bid may lose a few match points. However, I assure you that even here it will gain you many more points in a year's time than it will lose, when properly handled.

The following hand, which came up in a recent tournament, is an interesting example of this particular point. Generally, if one over one players sat North and South on this board they lost, while if they sat East and West they won.

The Bidding

Under all systems South, the dealer, will pass, as will West. One over one players who believe in weak third hand opening bids

 ♠ 10-3 ♥ Q-8-6-4-2 ♦ K-8-5 ♣ A-3-2 	 NORTH 13-11 Dealer SOUTH 	 ♠ A-Q ♥ 5-4-2 ♦ J-3 ♣ Q-9-7 *K-7-4
 ♠ K-8-7-6 ♥ K-7 ♦ 1-10-6 ♣ Q-J-10-5 		 ♠ J-9 ♥ A-10-9-5 ♦ A-4-3-2 ♣ 9-8-6

will open in the North with one heart. East will overcall with a spade, South will bid two hearts, West will bid two spades, North must pass.

Remember that while in this system you are given the right to make a weak third hand opening bid, you must never enter the bidding again unless you have a sound, legitimate bid.

East will pass and if South does venture to bid three hearts, West will go to three spades, which is exactly what East and West can make. Of course, if West elects to double three hearts, it can be beaten two tricks. So here we find that one over one players opening with a weak third hand will lose on this particular board.

However, supposing that a pair of one over one players are sitting East and West, and those believing in strong third hand bids are sitting North and South. In this case South, West and North will all pass.

Most one over one players will open fourth hand in the East position with one spade. If South passes, West can only bid two spades which East, of course, will pass. At no time will East and West, playing the constructive one over one system of bidding, arrive

Nanking, Aug. 22.

Mr. Liu Wei-chi, Vice-Minister of Industry, who was with Mr. Sun Fo when the latter visited General Feng Yu-hsiang, told pressmen here to-day that the Government had offered General Feng three positions, one of which he was asked to choose.

The positions were Commissioner of Forestation and Colonisation for the North-West; Inspector-General of the Army and Commissioner for the improvement of the Yellow River.

Mr. Sun Fo arrived this morning from Tientsin, and stated that he interviewed General Feng Yu-hsiang in a private capacity.

He expressed his doubt in regard to the reported postponement of the Fifth National Kuomintang Congress, which he believed would be held as scheduled, in November.

New Appointment.

at a four spade contract, even though East opens with a hand as weak as this.

One North and South pair, after North had opened the contracting with one heart, were able to hold the contract to two spades. South opened the five of hearts. Declarer must now guess whether North holds the ace or the queen of hearts. If declarer guessed wrong, playing the seven of hearts, North would win with the queen and then return a small heart, South winning with the ace.

AIR SEARCH FOR SMUGGLERS

"DAWN PATROL" IN SINGAPORE

WATCH ON LINER

Singapore is now employing aeroplanes in a determined effort to combat the ever-present incidence of smuggling in Singapore waters.

The first "dawn patrol," a Moth aeroplane from the Flying Club, set out last week and as a result the Monopolies Department is now considering that this new method of smuggling patrol should be permanently adopted.

The machine flew to the Horeburgh light, and landed in a small cove, hidden from view, to await the approach of a certain liner expected from China ports.

WAITING CRAFT

Taking to the air shortly after sunrise, it identified the liner at 7.55 a.m., steaming slowly towards the harbour. If there were smugglers aboard this would be an admirable place to "dump" their contraband. Small waiting craft were in the vicinity.

Suddenly the pilot gave the signal and the Moth swooped down to within ten feet of the water. As the observer Mr. Gordon satisfied himself that the native boats were not of the type usually used by smugglers' accomplices and away flew the plane again.

THE ARM OF THE LAW

Had his suspicions been aroused the signal to waiting launches could have been given and the arm of the law would have reached out.

If it is decided to adopt this system of aerial control it is expected that the Singapore Flying Club's

ENQUIRY EVIDENCE DEVELOPMENT

TREATMENT OF ACCUSED

London, Aug. 22. Arising out of the burning of the Reichstag immediately prior to the holding of the last elections in Germany, an interesting situation has arisen.

At the moment an International Legal Commission is conducting an investigation into the burning of the building and it is understood that they have gathered important evidence.

The German Government a few days ago requested the Commission to forward copies of certain papers held by the Commission, and the members agreed to do so upon certain conditions.

CONDITIONS REFUSED. The conditions included more humane treatment for the accused, a free choice of counsel by the accused and the right of defending counsel to call witnesses and to examine all documents relating to the trial.

The German Government has, it is learned to-day, refused to accept the conditions laid down by the Commission.

The Nazis, it will be recalled, arrested a number of alleged Communists and imprisoned them on allegations of connexion with the burning of the Reichstag.—Reuter.

Cutty Sark will be used, for, as was the case this morning, the sea is sometimes very rough. It would then be possible for this machine to make a safe landing, anchor and enable a patrol to catch a gang red-handed.

NINE GOALS A MATCH

REMARKABLE AYR RECORD

SCOTTISH LEAGUE RESULTS

London, Aug. 22. Ayr United, who started their Scottish League season by conceding seventeen goals in their first two games, replying only once, to-day confirmed the improvement marked on Saturday by scoring seven goals at Third Lanark.

That their defence needs to be considerably tightened up is, however, obvious. Although they won on Saturday and again to-day, their defence conceded seven goals in the two matches. Their figures for four games are remarkable. They have obtained four points and scored twelve goals against twenty-four, providing an average of nine goals per match!

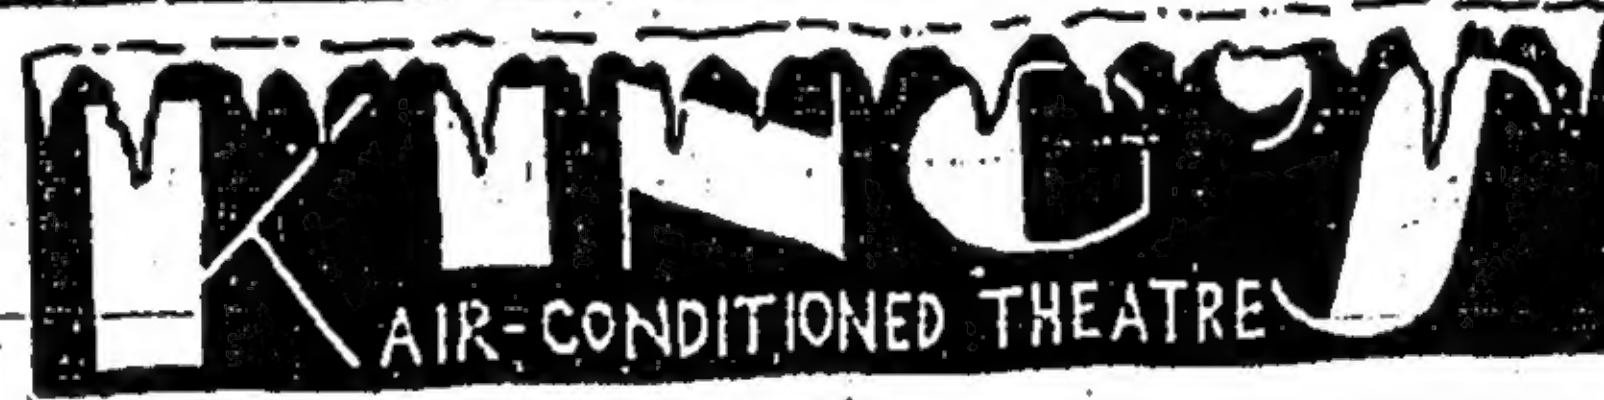

Glasgow Rangers improved their goal average at the expense of Clyde, but St. Mirren were held to a draw by Airdrie.

Results of to-day's games, as enabled by Reuter, are appended:

Clyde	1	Rangers	6
Heart of Midlothian	4	Hamilton	1
St. Mirren	1	Airdrie	1
3rd Lanark	4	Ayr Un.	7
